U.S. rushing 2 fighter squadrons to S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States was sending two squadrons of jet fighters to South Korea today as the bodies of the two American officers killed by North Korean guards in the Panmunjom truce village were flown home.

South Korean President Chung Hee Park promised "immediate retaliatory steps in case of another illegal Communist North Korean provocation."

The U.S. Defense Department announced that a squadron of F4 Phantom jets had flown north from Okinawa to Korea and a squadron of F111's was being sent to Korea from Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho.

Officials in Washington said about 25 combat and reconnaissance planes were sent from Okinawa.

The Pentagon stressed that the air force reinforcement was a precautionary measure. Washington officials described it as a warning to North Korea, which has nearly three times as many combat planes as South Korea.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said other "precautionary military measures" were being taken but refused to give any indication of what they were.

"We want to make it absolutely clear that the United States will not accept attacks on its personnel," he said.

The two Americans were battered and hacked to death Wednesday while heading the security detail for a South Korean working party pruning a tree in the joint security zone at Panmunjom, in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

The United States charged that North Korean guards attacked the Americans and South Koreans without provocation, killed the two American officers with axes and metal pikes and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans.

Three North Koreans were reported killed, and North Korea charged that the Americans and South Koreans attacked its troops.

One U.S. diplomat here, asked about the possible motives behind Wednesday's incident, said North Korean guards "tend to over-react" because they believe Pyongyang's propaganda that an all-out U.S.-South Korean attack is imminent.

He also said he believed the North Koreans may be capitalizing on the "Vietnam syndrome," triggering incidents that they hope will wear down the American public's patience and cause it, as in Vietnam, to demand a withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The 41,000 American troops in Korea, South Korea's 600,000-man armed forces and North Korea's estimated 685,000 men in uniform were all put on precautionary alerts after the clash. But the 151-mile-long demilitarized zone was reported quiet today, and the people of Seoul went about their business as usual.

The bodies of the two Americans, Maj. Arthur Bonifas, 33, of Newbury, and 1st Lt. Mark T. Barrett, 25, of Columbia, S.C., were put aboard a U.S. Air Force C130 transport after a planeside memorial service at Kimpo International Airport attended by military personnel and more than 100 government, military and diplomatic officials.

Gen. Richard Stilwell, the commander of U.S. and U.N. forces in Korea, put Purple Hearts on the two flag-draped aluminum caskets. He also announced that Bonifas had been promoted posthumously to major.

Chaplain Robert A. Hutcherson led the mourners in prayer. A sergeant sounded taps, echoed by another bugler in the background. Three rifle volleys were fired.

All airport activities stopped during the 25-minute service, and dozens of Korean workers in white fatigues stood with their heads bowed.

Barrett, in a last letter home to his mother, complained of not being armed despite the danger they faced from the North Koreans.

He also told his mother, "You just can't believe how they hate Americans."

Earlier he had writtten a college friend saying he enjoyed his job. "I have a good bunch of men and there are some far out officers up here."

Stilwell sent a strong protest to a meeting Thursday of the joint armistice commission in Panmunjom, and the United States delivered a full report on the incident to the U.N. Security Council in New York. It did not ask for any council action.

Burglar alarm really timely

An Ontario woman picked the right time to have a burglar alarm installed in her home Thursday.

Ironically, just as two Sears security system men called at the home of Mrs. Donna D. Allen of 429 Harvard St. to install a burglar alarm, two would-be burglars were busy at work trying to open a back door.

One of the suspects was her own son.

The Sears employes, Charles McRee, and Tim Hussey, carrying the new burglar alarm system, walked around to the back door of the Allen home and saw the two burglars. McRee and Hussey yelled at the pair, "freeze. Don't move." The burglars, completely surprised, ran, but were quickly stopped by the security men.

Police were called to the home and Michael Rand Allen, 21, of 1850 E. Granada Court and Willis Allen Brewer, 21, of 9414 N. Benson Ave., Montclair were arrested on the spot. Both men were booked in West End jail for investigation of burglary.

Mrs. Allen later contacted by officers said that she had had difficulty with one of her sons in the past and suspected that he was burglarizing her home. As a result, she called Sears to have the security alarm installed.

Had intended to extend his own to debate

Surprised Carter accepts Ford's challenge

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — President Ford's challenge to a presidential campaign debate upstaged Jimmy Carter and caught the Democratic nominee and his staff by surprise.

The words "face-to-face" debate were hardly out of Ford's mouth when Carter's press secretary rounded up reporters to say his candidate, too, was ready to debate — a decision that could produce the first such presidential campaign encounter since John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in 1960 in series of four nationally televised debates.

Ford made his challenge Thursday night in his presidential nomination acceptance speech to the Republican National Convention and a national television audience.

"I am ready and eager," he told the delegates, "to go before the American people and debate Jimmy Carter. The people have a right to know where we stand."

The debate challenge was not in the advance text of Ford's speech.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had been considering issuing the challenge for the past 10 days. He said it was left out of the advance text of the speech because Ford wanted to save it as a surprise for the delegates.

Carter press secretary Jody Powell relayed Carter's acceptance — what Carter people called his "counter challenge" — to fewer than a dozen reporters watching Ford deliver his speech on a television set beside a motel swimming poll.

His staff had scurried from room to room searching for newspaper, wire service and television reporters. Powell read the only available copy of the Carter statement.

It wasn't suppose to happen that way. Carter had intended to issue his own debate challenge to Ford today at a 9 a.m. news conference in a carefully orchestrated response to the week-long GOP convention.

But he decided to release his prepared statement as soon as he learned of Ford's decision from television commentators, who reported shortly before Ford gave his speech that he would issue the debate challenge.

The former Georgia governor kept silent through a week in which Republican convention speakers called him "a Georgia redneck" and questioned his sincerity, record and ability to lead the nation.

Carter and his wife, Rosalyn, watched the Ford speech Thursday night in their home on the outskirts of nearby Plains.

Carter's prepared text said he will do his best to use normal campaign methods — speeches, press releases and advertising — "to be sure the American people understand my hopes and plans.

Carter said he has named Powell to the steering committee which is laying groundwork for a potential debate for the League of Women Voters. He said President Ford has named a member of his staff to the same panel.

The League arranged a series of joint appearances by most of the contenders in this year's Democratic presidential primaries.

On Thursday, it sent telegrams to both candidates, urging them to participate in three league-sponsored debates.

Rita Hauser, a New York lawyer who is one of three persons organizing the debate project, said the league suggested to Ford and Carter that the first debate take place Sept. 28 at the Chase Plaza Hotel in St. Louis. The other two would be during the weeks of Oct. 11 and Oct. 25 in different regions of the country.

The vice presidential nominees would be invited to debate during the week of Oct. 18, she said.

She said the presidential debates would first focus on domestic issues, then on foreign policy and later on other issues related to the presidency.

She said league officials haven't yet decided whether Eugene McCarthy, an independent presidential candidate, will be invited to participate in the debates.

An official of the league said today that Ford and Carter agreed to debate "because it was the right thing to do.

"There was pressure from the American people. In a Gallup poll on Aug. 8, 70 per cent said they wanted to see TV debate this year," said the official, who asked not to be identified. "This will be the first presidential election financed completely by public money, which places a greater obligation on the candidates — which they have met."

Carter staff members said requests for a debate also have been received from the National Press Club in Washington and from all three Sunday network television interview programs.

$500 million refund from phone firms asked of PUC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State Public Utilities Commission has been asked to order California's two largest phone companies to refund $500 million to customers.

Los Angeles City Atty. Burt Pinés, in a brief filed Thursday, said Pacific Telephone Co. and General Telephone Co. also should reduce rates a total of $250 million annually.

The city official said the reductions are warranted because of "windfall" tax write-offs allegedly taken by the two utilities.

An example of the write-offs, said Deputy City Atty. Leonard Snaider, occurred "in 1974 (when) Pacific actually paid $63 million in taxes. For rate-making purposes, it claimed that it paid $203 million in taxes. The rate payer compensates Pacific for its overinflated, nonexistent taxes."

Hearing moved to Los Angeles

Criminal proceedings against two boys who are accused of slaying Pomona grocer Howard R. Reese July 26 have been moved to Los Angeles.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joe Howard said the juvenile court in Pomona decided that the trial here was too crowded to conduct a weeklong hearing.

The young suspects, a 16-year-old resident of Pomona and a 15-year-old boy from Diamond Bar, were arrested Aug. 4 in Diamond Bar, near where the victim's car was found abandoned.

Police said Reese, assistant manager of the Lucky Star Market, 1600 W. Mission Blvd., was shot to death after being forced to leave the store.

Howard said a hearing will be held in Los Angeles Sept. 13 to determine whether the 16-year-old should be tried as an adult. He said the 15-year-old is too young to undergo fitness hearing.

If the older boy is declared unfit as a juvenile, his case will be returned to Pomona for trial.

Strike against RTD postponed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Negotiations to avert a strike against the Rapid Transit District have been postponed until Saturday, when the district's board of directors will consider the latest proposal forwarded by drivers, mechanics and maintenance men.

A spokesman for the United Transportation Union said Thursday the district's latest offer was "unacceptable," and the union was advised that the district could not "go beyond the offer without the authority of the Board of Directors."

The board will not meet until Saturday, the spokesman said, after which negotiators for both sides will resume talks.

Terms of the union's counter-proposal were not released.

Officials of the UTU and the Amalgamated Transit Union, which represents the mechanics and maintenance men, have been given approval to strike if no agreements are reached. A UTU official said the union would hold off on a strike until after the district's board meeting.

Dole offers to debate Mondale

Ford urges change in VP selection process

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Republicans' Middle America ticket of Gerald R. Ford and Robert Dole leaves this city with promises of support from the once-divided GOP convention for its underdog team and primed for debate with Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Dole offered today to debate the other half of the Democratic ticket, his Senate colleague Walter Mondale. He noted that he and Mondale have debated in the Senate for years and that extending this debate into the campaign would provide a natural extension of the colloquy.

"I'm willing," Dole declared.

There was no immediate comment from Mondale.

Ford, meanwhile, urged the Republican National Committee to consider changing the way the party choses its vice presidential nominee. While endorsing no specific revision, he noted that a fight over the vice presidential selection procedure figured in his nomination battle.

His challenger had urged the convention to require Ford to name his running mate in advance of balloting on the presidential nomination. Ford defeated the proposal in a crucial convention showdown.

The debate challenge wasn't in the advance text of Ford's speech accepting the presidential nomination.

"I am ready and eager," he told the delegates "to go before the American people and debate the real issues, face to face with Jimmy Carter. The people have a right to know where we both stand."

The delegates roared their approval in what was probably the most emotional and most spontaneous response Ford received during the convention.

But the final emotional moment belonged to the man Ford defeated. After his acceptance speech, Ford called Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, to the podium.

It was a gesture of unity often seen in the closing moments of national political conventions. The victor and the vanquished stand together to demonstrate to their followers that the contest is over and it is time to unite against the common enemy.

But when Reagan began to speak, the hall grew silent. He recalled the cheers that had greeted his arrival in the hall hours earlier. "They give us a memory that will live in our hearts forever," he said.

Among the delegates who had given Reagan 1,070 votes, 60 short of the majority he sought for the presidential nomination, many wept.

The former California governor referred to the "erosion of freedom that has taken place under Democratic rule."

He told the delegates that although they belonged to a minority party, their actions could significantly affect the course of American history.

"We must go forward from here united, determined," Reagan said.

Then he embraced Betty Ford, and greeted others on the podium. Minutes later, the convention ended.

After his defeat Wednesday night, Reagan pledged to campaign for Ford. And Ford acknowledged the pledge in his acceptance speech when he said that "after the scrimmages of the past few months, it really feels good to have Ron Reagan on the same side of the line."

But only the campaign itself will demonstrate whether the show of unity that ended the Republican convention or the one that ended the Democratic convention a month earlier will hold up, whether wounds will heal, whether supporters of the losers will work with enthusiasm.

Landslides close Ensenada highway

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — The south end of the major toll highway linking Tijuana and Ensenada has been closed because of landslides.

Mayor Jorge Moreno Bonet of Ensenada said Thursday the highway should be reopened in about a month. A detour has been set up.

He said the weekend landslide wiped out some 700 feet of the toll road about 15 miles from Ensenada. The landslide reportedly also destroyed two houses, which slid off a steep hill and over a bluff.

Weather

Morning cloudiness throughout the weekend, followed by mostly sunny afternoons. Little change in temperatures. High today 78, low tonight 60, high Saturday 80. The high Thursday was 81 and the overnight low was 62. Saturday's sunrise 6:17, sunset 7:31.

Indeterminate prison terms to be shelved?

Nejedly bill on Assembly floor; okayed by committee

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's 59-year-old system of sentencing criminals to indeterminate prison terms would be changed to specific years for certain crimes under a bill now on the Assembly floor.

The Senate-passed measure by Sen. John Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, won 11-3 approval, exactly the number of votes needed for passage in the 21-member Ways and Means Committee Thursday.

The measure was opposed by judges and parole officers and supported by prosecutors, sheriffs, most police and the state attorney general.

"The system we have is unconscionable and has to be changed," Nejedly said. He said indeterminate sentences are leading to prison violence, and misleading the public, and that the present parole system is not working.

"We must accept that there is no means of predicting human behavior, especially in a prison setting," Nejedly said.

Opponents claimed the law will mean shorter prison terms, while Nejedly's law-enforcement backers claimed it would mean longer terms.

Nejedly, a former district attorney, said he had set the fixed sentences in his bill after studying the actual average sentences served under the present law.

He noted that the legislature can change the sentences prescribed in his bill, while it has no power over the terms served now.

Under present law, first passed in 1917, a judge sentences a convicted felon to an indeterminate term. For instance, one to 25 years is specified for kidnaping, except when ransom, injury or death is involved.

The actual time served by a kidnaper who is sentenced to 1 to 15 years is determined by the state Adult Authority. It averages 28 months for typical cases and 35 months for aggravated cases.

If the kidnaper sentenced to four years got the good time credit possible under Nejedly's bill, he could get out in 32 months.

Nejedly's bill specifies prison terms for all felonies, except those carrying life imprisonment, life without possibility of parole or death.

The bill divides crimes into seven categories. In four of them, judges have three choices of sentences. For instance, a kidnaper could be given 3, 4 or 5 years.

The least serious crimes would carry sentences of 16 months, 2 or 3 years, and the most serious ones, except those punishable by life in prison or death, would carry sentences of 5, 6 or 7 years.

The bill says the judge must give the middle sentence, unless he finds circumstances or aggravation or mitigation, in which case he can give the high or low sentence.

Prisoners could get good time credit of up to four months per year.

If their good time credit is denied by the warden, they can appeal to a new "Community Release Board," which would replace the present Adult Authority and the Women's Board of Terms and Parole.

The bill provides automatic parole on completion of a sentence of no longer than one year, except three years for "lifers," unless the Community Release Board waives parole and discharges the inmate.

The board would be empowered to review the cases of prisoners sentenced before the effective date of the act, next July 1, and to release people now in prison according to the guidelines of the new bill.

Tim Fitzharris of the California Probation and Parole Association said the bill would result in the release of 1,000 prisoners.

Superior Court Judge Bruce Allen of San Jose, a former assemblyman, said judges were not consulted in drafting the bill.

"This bill will put more people on probation. It makes it harder to send people to prison. This bill does not give judges discretion," Allen said.

"Those allegations are simply not the case," Nejedly said.

FUGITIVES' CAR

An FBI agent searches for clues in the automobile rented by prison escapees Susan Murphy and Diane Ellis. The automobile, found at San Francisco airport, was found abandoned this week on a tree-lined residential street in San Jose. The hunt for Miss Murphy, a Manson family member, and Miss Ellis, a convicted bank robber, shifted to San Jose.

Scientists look for Viking II landing site

PASADENA (AP) — Scientists working toward a Saturday deadline to find a parking spot on Mars for the second Viking lander virtually have sequestered themselves to study photographs of one region.

Geologists spent Thursday piecing together photos of the Utopia Planitia region into a mosaic that will depict the site on which they would most like to put down the Viking 2 lander.

They issued no reports about what they see.

Spokesmen have said they believe the area will be more interesting than the environment of Viking 1 because of masses of underground ice.

"We're still Earth chauvinists in that we're still looking for water as a sign of life," said Charles Redmon, a spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The scientists were drawn to this area, also known as B-3, partly because of the presence of water vapor in the atmosphere.

But they must hurry with their decision about landing there in order to meet a Sept. 3 landing date.

"They're trying to find a parking spot for the lander in an area where we're getting the first good look for the first time," Redmon said. "And this time they don't have the advantage of good radar pictures."

Viking 1 was helped in its search for a target by the Arecibo Dish, a giant, fixed radar station in Puerto Rico which provided sharp, high-resolution photographs of Martian features that some of the spacecraft's cameras couldn't provide.

But the Utopia site, farther north and about 4,000 miles from Viking 1's habitat, is out of range of the radar.

"We're running out of time," Redmon said. "We have fewer (sources of information) this time, and the site is potentially more interesting" than others passed up by Viking 2.

Utopia is situated on Mars in about the same position as Canada on Earth. It borders what scientists say is one of the ice regions on Mars.

Earlier photographs, though sketchy, also showed the area to be free of the deep craters and channels and odd markings resembling a plowed field.

Meanwhile, Viking 1 continued its three biology experiments in what scientists call the control phase. In this series of tests, soil samples are incubating longer than in an earlier series which yielded some life-mimicking results mistrusted by many of the scientists.

Cleaver's attorney sets plans

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver's attorney, scion of a family of radical lawyers, says his defense strategy will be to place the volatile political climate of the late 1960s on trial.

"The domestic espionage of that time is absolutely frightening, it's astounding," Patrick Hallinan said in an interview.

Cleaver, a former Black Panther leader who spent seven years in self-imposed exile abroad to avoid prosecution on attempted murder and assault charges, says he agrees.

"When I left the country in 1968, the FBI and the CIA, in concert with local police agencies, conspired to destroy the Black Panther party," Cleaver has said.

The selection of Hallinan ended a seven-month-long search for a lawyer for the one-time militant who now says democratic institutions he once scorned should be supported "and enhanced."

Hallinan said he took the case because he wants to use Cleaver's trial to "expose the matters only touched upon by Watergate." And also, he says, to prove Cleaver innocent.

Cleaver, 40, who voluntarily returned to the United States last November from Europe and was released on $100,000 bail last week, is scheduled to appear in Alameda County Superior Court on Monday for a hearing to set a trial date.

He is charged with three counts of attempted murder and three counts of assault stemming from a 1968 shootout between Oakland police and Black Panthers. One Panther was killed and four others, including Cleaver, then minister of information, were wounded.

"We will show that a group of police officers deliberately set out to murder Black Panthers," said Hallinan.

"Six men were convicted and sent to prison for that incident," he continued. "That's exactly what the federal government set out to do. It was the police who instigated it. We will prove that, and Eldridge Cleaver will walk out of that trial a free man."

The Panthers said they were collecting food for a picnic when the shootout began. "Eldridge Cleaver never held a gun in his hand and he never fired a shot," his attorney said.

Hallinan said he would wage a determined fight to subpeona federal records to prove his claims that the government used "false letters, phony communications and hordes of informers to create confrontations" between police and radicals.

He expects prosecutor Tom Orloff to "fight like hell to exclude this information," he said.

Only for one year, not two

Judges agree to freeze own wages, but...

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A statewide judges' group has offered to accept a one-year pay freeze, but Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is sticking to his public stance of insisting on a two-year hold on their salaries.

But Brown's top aide, Gray Davis, did not rule out eventual acceptance of the judges' offer.

The judges' offer was amended Thursday into the bill carried by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond. The measure was approved by the Senate Finance Committee and sent to the Senate floor.

The bill, originally a minor courts measure, was transformed last week into a proposal to freeze judges' pay for two years — until July 1979 — and allow future cost-of-living raises up to only 5 per cent.

Judges now get an automatic annual raise pegged to the rise in the consumer price index. On Sept. 1, Superior Court judges in the state will get $49,200, which is $100 above the governor's salary.

The potent judges' lobby has defeated repeated attempts by Brown to change that system.

But the president of the California Conference of Judges, Joseph Wapner of the Los Angeles Superior Court, told the committee the judges were tired of the fight and were willing to give up the cost-of-living raises.

He said the offer was made "in the spirit of compromise and the idea of getting the salary issue behind us," and added, "It's time we stopped coming up here and calling each other names and get back to the business of judging."

Knox told the committee Brown would veto any bill with less than a two-year freeze.

But after first rejecting the judges' one-year amendment, proposed by Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, on a 45 vote, the committee reversed itself and adopted it 5-4. It then approved the bill 7-1.

San Francisco transit strike avoided

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Buses, trolleys and cable cars ran as usual today after after a last-minute offer by the city averted a mass transit strike by 1,800 Municipal Railway drivers.

A strike deadline was set for 12:01 a.m. by the Transport Workers Union on issues of wages and fringe benefits. It would have been the second such disruption in five months and forced 250,000 persons to seek other transportation again.

Union leaders decided hours after the deadline to allow the membership to vote in secret Sunday whether to accept an 11th hour offer by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

The hopeful development came at the close of a day that saw commuters from within and without the city gird for paralysis of virtually all mass transit within the 47 square miles that comprise the northern end of the San Francisco Peninsula.

The drivers voted Wednesday, following sanction by the Central Labor Council, to strike today if a settlement with the city could not be reached, but late Thursday night supervisors came up with an improved pay package close to union demands.

The supervisors offered a $4.8 million package that included a hourly wage rate of of $7.47, a 57-cent improvement over the current wage; a $1 million cost-of-living provision, and $1.4 million in fringe benefits.

The union had asked asked for $7.56 an hour, the same cost-of-living protection as offered, and $2.2 million in fringe benefits.

Of the city's offer, Supervisor John Molinari said, "This is the package that the board feels is fair to the taxpayer and the workers."

Supervisor John Barbagelata snapped, "If they strike they've got to be out of their minds. They've been squeezing us up to the last minute."

Said Larry Martin, president of the Transport Workers Union Local 250A, "They (supervisors) play a good ball game over there," a remark some observers interpreted to mean the city escaped a strike by making an offer close but under union demands.

Legislature defeats bill meant to monitor the 'Palmdale Bulge'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite a warning that earthquake prediction could save 9,000 lives in the Los Angeles area, the legislature has rejected a bill to monitor the "Palmdale Bulge."

The proposal would install $16 million worth of instruments in the "Palmdale Bulge" area of Southern California, an area of uplift which some scientists say is related to a potential earthquake.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee on Thursday defeated the bill by Assemblyman Paul Carpenter, D-Cypress.

Carpenter said prediction of an earthquake in the Los Angeles area would enable authorities to give warning that would save 9,000 lives.

He said the best estimate is that a major earthquake at 3 p.m. would kill 12,000, while one at 3 a.m. would kill only 3,000. He said time to give warning would enable authorities to reduce casualties at 3 p.m. to the 3 a.m. level.

Robert Harris, a spokesman for the state Finance Department, said it was impossible to predict earthquakes, given the present state of the art.

"And what would people do if the prediction was made, if anything?" he asked.

Robert Olsen, executive secretary of the state Seismic Safety Commission, also opposed the bill. He said the state should help research on earthquake prediction, but also should try to reduce such hazards as old, unsafe buildings.

A 5-4 vote, far short of the 11-vote majority, defeated the bill.

It is AB 4533.

Medi-Cal funds bill given okay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Legislature has given final passage to a bill to help Los Angeles County with its budget problems by hurrying delivery of $11 million in state Medi-Cal funds.

Other counties will benefit too.

The Assembly sent the hastily drafted measure to the governor Thursday on a 58-0 vote with no debate.

The bill was supported by the Los Angeles delegation and carried by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro.

A quick signature was expected from Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The Los Angeles commissioners are struggling to avoid a huge property tax increase.

Thomas said the $11 million equals a five-cent cut in the county property tax rate.

His bill would require monthly payments to counties of Medi-Cal care funds.

Young girl tells how she had been kidnaped

WALNUT CREEK (AP) — Little Maria Polack pleaded with her kidnaper but he wasn't interested in her 43 cents for ransom.

"It was like a nightmare," the 10-year-old said, until her knife-wielding captor turned her loose after a two-hour nightmare.

Contra Costa County Sheriff's Sgt. Gary Ford said Maria and her brother Mauricio, 12, were delivering newspapers about 3:30 p.m. when they passed a dark blue pickup truck at the curb with its hood up.

"The man slammed the hood, grabbed my sister and threw her into the car," Mauricio said. "I started coming towards him but he said, 'This is a kidnap. You'd better run around that corner or I'll kill you'."

Ford said Mauricio ran into a neighbor's house to call the police, but by then Maria and her kidnaper were gone.

For the next two hours Maria said they drove aimlessly, the man telling her he was an escaped convict and asking her questions about her father's "fortunes."

Jorge Polack, raising three children by himself, is an accountant with Kaiser Aluminum and is not a wealthy man.

Maria was released about three miles from her home after she burst into tears and offered the kidnaper 43 cents.

"I said, 'Take it all, all this money, and let me out.' And he said, 'What am I going to do with 43 cents. All right, if you don't get out the car now, I'll take you with me'."

Her only injury was a small bruise on the neck suffered when the kidnaper grabbed her and forced her into the car, Ford said.

He said he did not think the children made up the kidnap story because, "There are just too many consistencies."

Smoke alarms, Darvon get heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission says it has collected several reports of alleged malfunctioning of certain household smoke-detectors made by an Illinois firm. The manufacturer is inspecting the units.

BRK Electronics of Aurora, Ill., said after the commission's announcement Thursday that it believes only 220 of the 110,000 Model SS749-series units it is trying to inspect may be subject to malfunction.

Dennis Clair, BRK's industrial-products manager, said he has instituted a voluntary recall and is in the process of notifying factory representatives, distributors, builders and state fire marshals.

The commission said it is investigating reports that a resistor in the units is subject to burning out.

No injuries have been reported, it said, and damage has been confined to scorch marks on ceilings around the malfunctioning units.

The models were made between April 1974 and September 1975 to operate off household current with a circuitry that Clair said has since been redesigned. The model number should be on a printed label visible on the outside of the base after the cover is removed.

Clair said the problem does not represent a significant hazard.

Darvon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators want to clamp strict controls on distribution of Darvon, the nation's third most-prescribed drug. Researchers have warned that abuse of the painkiller can cause dependence or death.

The Food and Drug Administration has recommended imposing limits on how often patients can refill prescriptions for Darvon, an FDA spokesman said Thursday.

Last year, U.S. physicians wrote 16.4 million new or refill prescriptions for Darvon, a trade name for propoxyphene. They also wrote about 1.6 million more prescriptions for similar products.

The FDA's stand comes three years after the agency rejected a call by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) to put Darvon and other painkillers containing propoxyphene under restrictions.

The FDA reconsidered its stand after a study this year implicated propoxyphene in thousands of overdose death over a period of years.

FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt now feels tighter control on the drug is "clearly warranted," according to the FDA spokesman.

Philippines

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Philippine navy frogmen searched the waters of the Moro Gulf today for hundreds of persons believed to have been swept out to sea by tidal waves after a powerful eartquake shook the southern Philippines.

The latest official toll reported 3,759 persons killed in the disaster, which devastated southern Mindanao island Tuesday. Officials said about 3,200 persons were missing, most presumed drowned in the giant waves.

Third World

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Leaders of the nonaligned movement returned home today after another call for a new international economic order and the usual criticism of the United States and its Western allies.

Communist and Socialist countries were spared the harsh words.

Political and economic declarations approved Thursday at the end of the four-day, 85-nation summit conference condemned the West in specific and general terms. But the language of the economic statement was relativly restrained.

The conference produced two unexpected moves: plans for the Third World countries to start their own commercial bank and a call for oil embargoes against France for agreeing to sell a nuclear reactor to South Africa and against Israel for contracting to build corvettes for the South African navy.

S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's industrialists have called for sweeping improvements in political, living and employment conditions in the rioting black townships which supply their labor force.

The Transvaal Chamber of Industries sent a memorandum to Prime Minister John Vorster Thursday as rioting blacks attacked industrial plants for the first time and the toll in the racial upheaval rose to at least 233 dead — all but three of them black — and 1,500 injured since mid-June.

The business leaders called for self-government in the segregated townships in which all urban blacks must live, improved housing, and an end to job and wage discrimination.

Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian and Moslem militias traded artillery barrages today, ignoring Arab League efforts to stop random shelling of residential quarters by both sides in the Lebanese civil war.

"The hysteria of indiscriminate shelling continues to escalate," a Moslem spokesman said. "Districts of southern Beirut have been turned into hell."

Hospital officials estimated that about 140 persons were killed and 180 wounded in fighting during the night in Beirut and the mountains of eastern and northern Lebanon. More than 34,000 are estimated to have been killed in the civil war since April 1975.

Lord Haw Haw

LONDON (AP) — The body of William Joyce, known as "Lord Haw-Haw" because of the World War II propaganda broadcasts he made for the Nazis, will be flown to Ireland today for reburial, the British Home Office said.

Joyce was hanged at London's Wandsworth Prison on Jan. 3, 1946, after he was convicted of treason.

Reagan— exit right: Ford— center stage

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The old actor, the nice guy in 51 movies, happened to be signing autographs in the mezzanine when the nice guy on the platform below started waving at him.

The whole convention faced left and saw it, but for a moment the autograph-signer didn't.

Finally, an aide got his ear, pointed and informed Ronald Reagan that the President of the United States was down there asking him to appear on the podium for the traditional display of gemutlichkeit national political conventions expect of winners and losers.

The band cut loose with "California Here I Come," and the Western and Southern flanks of the Republican Party, which had been sitting on their hands during the ovation for Gerald Ford, tore the roof off.

And there on the platform were Ford and Reagan, arm in arm, the main-event contenders who had fought each other down to the wire, and their wives, who had faced each other in the prelims night after night from opposite ends of the great arena like competing cheerleaders.

The President introduced the man who came within 60 votes of making him the first incumbent to lose his party's nomination in 92 years. Ford presented Reagan as "my good friend" — a friendship, some say, one day old.

Reagan thanked Ford for his "kindness and generosity" in inviting him and his wife to the platform. That was the last direct reference Reagan made to the man who ended his dream of taking up residence at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

He did praise the Republican platform as a "call to arms" compared with the "rerun of the late late show," an old trouper's reference to the Democratic platform. He spoke of the challenges to peace and freedom, summoned the brethren to go forth united to victory.

He ended in a thunder of applause. He shook hands with the winner and received a kiss from Betty Ford.

Then Ronald and Nancy Reagan backed off the platform together, arm in arm, waving, smiling bravely in a slow fadeout.

For Gerald Rudolph Ford, the butt of endless jokes, it was clearly a special night, perhaps even a transformation. In his acceptance speech, the country saw an underdog coming back fighting, strong, confident, poised, rousing.

He took a less than epic text and, with precise timing and polished emphasis, made the welkin ring. He was interrupted for applause 63 times in 36 minutes, which, for the man from Grand Rapids, must be a new course record.

He gave the Democratic Congress more hell than anybody since Harry Truman skinned the Republican Congress in 1948.

He told Jimmy Carter he was "eager" to debate him, a rare posture for a sitting president.

He promised to wage a winning campaign from the "snowy banks of Minnesota to the sandy plains of Georgia," from the home turf of Walter Mondale to the home turf of Jimmy Carter.

He gave this convention of Republicans the red meat they had hungered for through all the lean days since Watergate.

Are Jimmy-Jerry; Walt-Bob debates in offing?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Robert Dole today offered to debate his Democratic rival and Senate colleague, Walter Mondale.

"We've been doing it (debating) long enough in the Senate," Dole said. "I'm willing."

The Kansas senator made his remarks in interviews on the CBS "Morning News" and on NBC's "Today" show before launching his campaign by showing off his home town of Russell, Kan., to President Ford.

The President issued a challenge to Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter on Thursday night to "debate the real issues face to face." Carter accepted.

On a third news program, ABC's "Good Morning, America," Dole said he now feels that Ford's decision to pardon former President Richard M. Nixon was best for the country. But Dole said he still thinks the timing of the pardon was wrong.

Referring to his trip with Ford to Russell, in western Kansas, Dole said: "I'm going to put it on the map at last. It's out there somewhere."

Ford was to spend several hours in Russell with Dole, participating in a quickly put-together "Bob Dole Day," before continuing alone to Vail, Colo.

Earlier, Dole said the GOP ticket he shares with Ford is "in great shape."

But he acknowledged that it would not be a simple task to fulfill the promise in his acceptance speech to the Republican National Convention that he would strive to "insure four more years of Republican leadership in the White House."

"I don't say it's downhill. But at least the slope isn't so bad," he told a crowd of supporters.

Spotlight on area crime

Woman kidnaped, released

A young POMONA woman was abducted off a city street Thursday afternoon and dumped in the hills near Bonelli Park by two men who attempted to rape her.

According to police, the 18-year-old woman was walking along Park Avenue near Monterey Avenue when two men pulled her into a car, despite her attempts to run away while screaming for help.

While one suspect drove the other tried to disrobe the victim and beat her, police said.

She finally was pushed out of the car near Bonelli Park, where she contacted authorities.

The woman received treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for numerous bruises and was released.

Only a partial description of the two men was given by police. One was said to be black and the other, possibly white. Police are seeking a Pomona resident for questioning.

Stereo burglars

James Walter Wilson, 24, of 1559 W. Mission Blvd., ONTARIO, complained to police that burglars broke into his home and made off with a stereo set with a total value of $1,150.

Police said that the burglars entered the Wilson home by reaching through a broken front door window and opening a deadbolt lock.

Attacks officer

A 42-year-old man who allegedly attacked an ONTARIO police officer with a butcher knife in a home at 1044 W. Vesta St. Thursday has been admitted to San Bernardino County Hospital's mental health ward.

Police said that Officer Jim Bright was called to the home of Curtis Wayne Reed, 42, of the Vesta Street address because of a family disturbance. When Bright entered the home, Reed suddenly lunged at him with a butcher knife, officers said.

Bright knocked the knife out of Reed's hand with his nightstick and subdued him with mace. Bright was not injured in the incident.

Reed was booked in the West End Jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and then transferred to the county hospital.

Capt. Bob Dole: still charging the enemy

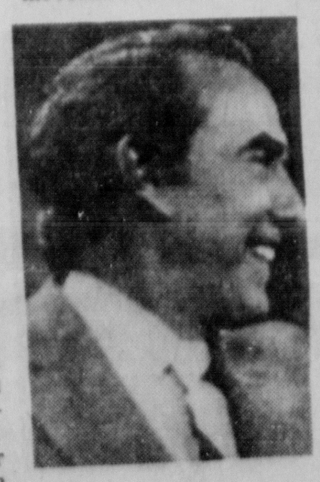

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) Bob Dole and Gerald Ford, who spent eight years together as minority members of the House of Representatives, share many traits: they are unflaggingly loyal to the Republican party, particularly its conservative wing, personable and even-tempered in public.

But Dole, whom Ford named Thursday as his choice for the vice presidential nomination, is far different from Ford in his slashing style of debate, marked by brashness and sarcasm that he used to vigorously defend the Nixon Administration on the floor of the Senate and as national GOP chairman.

The 53-year-old senator from Kansas was even called a "hatchet man" by a senator from his own party.

Dole gave a preview of what could be his campaign style when he addressed the Republican Convention Monday night as its temporary chairman.

The dark-haired, wiry senator recited a litany of the results of a Democratic presidency and Congress over the last two decades and then lashed the opposition party's platform.

"It tilts so far left that any of us would slide off," he said of the Democratic platform. "But worse than that it is a collection of deceptions."

And he attacked Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter.

"The Democratic party doesn't know what its candidate stands for ... and the Democratic candidate doesn't think we have a right to know," he said.

Dole is midway through his second term in the Senate, where he has compiled a conservative record.

The Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative group, rated his voting record between 64 and 84 for his years in the Senate, with 100 being a "perfect" score. The Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal rating group, put his score at 0 to 19 during the same period.

In naming Dole, Ford pointed to some of their similarities.

"His philosophy and mine coincide almost exactly," Ford said. "He has been a great team player."

Dole made his name in Washington with his counterattacks against Democrats who were critical of Nixon administration policies. First on the war in Southeast Asia and then on the Watergate scandal, Dole was frequently on his feet, defending Nixon with his wit and a prosecutorial style developed in eight years as the district attorney in Russell County, Kan.

For his loyalty Dole was named national chairman of the Republican party in 1971, succeeding Rogers C.B. Morton, who is now Ford's campaign manager. Dole served as chairman until early 1973.

Dole married the former Phyllis E. Holden, a therapist who helped him recover from injuries suffered in World War II which cost him the use of his right arm and left him with only partial feeling in his left arm. Married in 1948, they had one child before being divorced in 1972.

Late last year, Dole married Elizabeth Hanford, a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Dole's selection as the vice presidential candidate has two parallels with Sen. Barry Goldwater' choice of Rep. William Miller as his running mate in 1964. Both Dole and Miller served as national GOP chairman. Both selections came unexpectedly.

Dole grew up in Russell, Kan., where his father operated a cream and egg station. He was aiming for a medical career when World War II broke out.

He rose to the rank of captain before being hit by shrapnel as he led an infantry charge against a machine gun nest in Italy. His right shoulder was shattered and his vertebrae cracked. He spent 39 months in an Army hospital.

After the war and his recuperation, Dole finished his undergraduate work at the University of Kansas and went on to earn his law degree there in 1952.

He immediately plunged into state politics, winning a seat in the Kansas legislature, where he served from 1951 until 1953. Then he won four straight elections as prosecuting attorney of Russell County.

In 1960, Dole was elected to the House of Representatives. His district spanned 52 wheatgrowing counties on the plains of western Kansas.

During his eight years in the House, he worked with Ford and devoted much time to the interests of his district. He served on the House Agriculture Committee and chaired an ad hoc Republican committee investigating the scandal surrounding Bobby Baker, a Lyndon Johnson protege.

In 1968, Dole moved up to replace retiring Sen. Frank Carlson, defeating former Gov. William H. Avery for the GOP nomination. He won the general election with more than 60 per cent of the vote.

Dole's style on both the Senate floor and the stump drew both praise and criticism from fellow GOP senators.

"He's the first man we've had around here in a long time who will grab the other side by the hair and drag them down the hill," Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, called Dole a "hatchet man" whose style was such that he "couldn't sell beer on a troop ship."

There also was the comparison made by a White House official when Dole succeeded Morton as GOP chairman.

"Rog is a big old St. Bernard, while Dole is a hungry Doberman pinscher."

'He's the first man we've had around here in a long time who will grab the other side by the hair and drag them down the hill.'

Obituaries

Marie Laurie

Mrs. Marie K. Laurie, wife of William Laurie of 3945 Bradford Ave., La Verne, died Thursday evening in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Mrs. Laurie was born July 23, 1897 in Jeannette, Pa. She came to California in 1957 from New Jersey and lived in San Gabriel, then Leisure World in Laguna Hills before moving to La Verne in 1973. She was a member of the United Church of Christ, Congregational, Claremont.

She also leaves a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth W. Ashbaugh of San Dimas; a son, The Rev. William K. Laurie of Columbus, Ohio; four sisters, Mrs. Edwin V. Clarke and Mrs. A. Markley Barnes, both of Dunedin, Fla., Mrs. Claude Stoltz of Jeannette, Pa., and Mrs. Carl Haeberle of Huntington, W.Va.; eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. David M. Held and the Rev. Kenneth T. Widney, will officiate. Services will conclude in the chapel and private entombment will be made in the Pasadena Mausoleum.

Friends may call at the Pomona chapel Saturday and Sunday from 2 until 5 p.m.

Lillian Van Hook

Mrs. Lillian H. Van Hook of 110 Bryn Mawr Road, Claremont, died Tuesday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Mrs. Van Hook was born July 4, 1938 in Sylvester, Ga. and came to California nine years ago. She had resided in Claremont for five years and was a member of the Claremont congregation of the Jehovah's Witnesses. She was a psychiatric social worker at Pacific State Hospital and a member of California State Employes Association.

Mrs. Van Hook is survived by her husband, Lonnie; one son, Stephen of the home; one daughter, Stephanie of the home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harris of Sylvester, Ga.; three brothers, Walter Harris Jr. of Miami, Fla., Fleming Harris of the U.S. Army, Ft. Lewis, Wash. and Herman Harris of Tuskegee, Ala.; three sisters, Mrs. Grace Rabon of Jacksonville, Fla., Miss Sandra Harris of San Jose and Miss Trellis Harris of Milpitas.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Draper Chapel, Ontario. Burial will be made in Bellevue Cemetery, Ontario. John C. McMillan of the Claremont congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will officiate.

Friends may call at Draper Mortuary from 4 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

Dottie intensifies

By The Associated Press

Tropical storm "Dottie" intensified off the Florida coast overnight, and forecasters said the storm may be headed for the coast of the Carolinas. They said Dottie could reach hurricane force today.

Meanwhile, tropical storm "Candice" lost strength and moved away from the Northeast coast.

Gale warnings were posted for today along the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville, Fla., to Virginia Beach, Va. A hurricane watch was posted from Savannah, Ga., to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

A flash flood watch covered South Carolina today as locally heavy rains moved inland.

Thunderstorms extended along the southern Atlantic coast this morning from Florida to North Carolina.

There were also scattered showers this morning from the Pacific Northwest to the northern plains. Showers and occasional thundershowers were scattered over the northern third of California and from east Arizona through west Texas.

New museum

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A new museum which focuses on the contributions of black people who have lived in Nebraska, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri and Colorado since the time of the Emancipation Proclamation opened here recently.

Museum director Bertha Calloway said the Great Plains Black Museum is the only one of its kind west of the Mississippi.

It was established by the Negro Historical Society of Nebraska with a $101,000 grant from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Plane mishap shakes up 2

Two men were slightly hurt Wednesday afternoon when a light airplane experienced a brake failure on landing and flipped over on its back at Upland's Cable Airport.

Pilot of the Tri-Pacer 150 aircraft, Robert McKay, 53, of Chino and his passenger Paul Kirby, 39, of Walnut, both suffered head cuts in the 1:30 p.m. mishap. Both men were treated and released from West End hospitals.

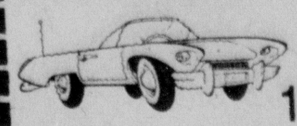

Police said that the pilot reported having some difficulty with the aircraft's braking system as he touched down on the airfield. The plane went out of control and flipped over on its back heavily damaging the craft.

Griswold's tops out new building

An old European custom was enacted at Griswold's complex on Foothill Boulevard in Claremont Tuesday afternoon with a symbolic tree-raising ceremony.

The tree was raised to the roof of the three-story garden office building east of Colby Circle.

Griswold's owner Alton Sanford explained that the tree-topping is an old European custom of wishing good luck on a new building.

With every new building or wing constructed, Griswold's always has erected a good luck tree which remains on the roof until it is finished.

As the tree was raised, guests joined Sanford in shouting, "Skol."

In Sweden, the custom is known as "Takstolsfest," and an evergreen wreath is used instead of a tree.

Sanford said that most of the 24,000-square-foot building already has been leased, but office space still is available on the first floor.

I. E. DuPont de Nemours and Co. will have its regional offices on the third floor.

Prudential Insurance Co. will occupy most of the second floor.

Ground was broken in January, and completion of the building is scheduled for November.

The building will carry out the Mediterranean theme of architecture of the existing structures in the complex.

Eighty per cent of the outside walls will have floor-to ceiling bronzed glass.

The decorated Christmas tree with its colorful streamers can be seen from Foothill Boulevard.

Grocers' scholarships

Southern California Grocers Association will conduct an industry-wide campaign to establish scholarships for the UCLA Extension program, "Professional Designation in Retail Food Marketing."

Murray Yunker, past president of the Board of Certified Grocers, said the campaign will solicit major food manufacturers, brokers and industry associations to underwrite enrollments for the university continuing education program which consists of an integrated sequence of six course leading to a certificate.

Scholarships will be awarded to qualified persons wishing to build professional careers in food merchandising and market management.

Fall quarter classes are scheduled to begin the week of Sept. 20 at the Westwood campus and the Extension Downtown Center.

Information about the courses may be obtained by contacting Norma Stein, Continuing Education in Management, Labor and Business, UCLA Extension, (213) 825-7031.

Scholarship information may be obtained from Ben Schwartz, Foods Co. Marketc, Inc., (213) 757-8361.

Demolition of damaged Upland Inn begins

Owners of valley landmark plan to rebuild within year

ALMOST GONE

Contractor George Montley of Buena Park, left, inspects demolition of the Upland Inn with Bob Aston, tractor operator. The famed landmark, severely damaged by fire on April 1, will be totally leveled by Saturday afternoon.

By Saturday afternoon, the fire-scarred Upland Inn will be totally demolished.

Most Uplanders were still asleep Thursday morning when the community landmark at 123 E. Ninth Street began falling to wrecking crews.

Built in 1901 by the E.P. Chaffey family, the inn was gutted by fire in the early morning hours on April 1. Insurance and fire officials termed the structure damaged beyond repair.

The inn is the second major landmark in the valley to be razed within the past week. The old Pomona post office, built in 1931, has been leveled for the construction of a new bank-savings and loan facility.

Action on the demolition of the building was speedy after the City Council on Monday ordered the structure leveled within two weeks as a nuisance. The city said it would demolish the building after Aug. 30 if it was not done beforehand.

Tuesday, contractor George Montley of Buena Park took out a permit from the city's building department for the demolition. Wednesday, the firm posted a bond.

While it might appear symbolic that Upland Inn's demolition started in the early morning hours since the fire which triggered its destruction also started while most residents slept, that wasn't the reason for the timing, city officials said.

Upland has a city ordinance which restricts noise, and the crashing of the remaining walls of the two-story building was certainly noisy. But city officials felt the reverberations were far more desirable than the possibility of injury to motorists or pedestrians from any flying debris.

"We compared the safety factor to the inconvenience of noise and decided on the early-morning timing," said Bob Sullivan, head of the city's building department.

Montley said he had written permission from the nearby residents to begin demolition in the early morning hours.

The contractor said he had been inside the structure several times earlier to salvage what little could be saved.

"We'll have it all leveled and cleaned up by Saturday afternoon," Montley said. He is being paid approximately $9,000 by William Vallon, an owner, for the job.

Vallon and his wife, Barbara, owners of the inn say they plan to rebuild the restaurant even though the insurance won't cover the costs. They hope to be open in a year.

The inn was built by the Chaffey family when they migrated to the area, then called North Ontario, from Chicago. The Chaffey named the inn after a Chicago hotel, the Algonquin.

The west section which included the kitchen and dining room was added in 1907 and the Chaffeys operated the inn until 1921 when it was sold to W.S. Avery who operated it as the Upland Hotel and later, Upland Inn, for 21 years.

The building changed hands several times in the following years and was finally purchased by the Vallons in 1959.

The Vallons did not intend to operate the hotel as a restaurant. But when they moved in on New Year's Eve, 1959, they discovered that elderly guests in the hotel planned to eat cold food, including graham crackers, over the three-day holiday since no nearby restaurants would be open.

Mrs. Vallon and her children managed to feed the hotel residents over the holiday and that prompted her to apply for a room-and-board license.

Eventually, the Vallons opened the restaurant to the public and it soon became a popular meeting place for clubs and service organizations.

The hotel rooms were closed several years ago as a safety measure.

The fire which struck the Upland Inn was the second major fire disaster to strike the Vallons in less than two years. Their home had previously been destroyed by fire.

The fire also destroyed many valuable antiques and collectors' items displayed in the dining room.

Many of the inn's employes are now employed at another restaurant operated by the Vallons in Corona, the Choo Choo Restaurant.

The demolition is expected to take about two weeks.

Valley briefs

Two injured in accidents

Two pedestrians were injured in separate traffic accidents in Pomona and Claremont Thursday, with both apparently escaping serious injury.

In Claremont, Sheryl Lambert, 16 of Passaic, N.J. was hit by a car as she crossed the eastbound offramp of the San Bernardino Freeway at Indian Hill Boulevard.

Police identified the driver of the car as Deborah Ann Oliver, 24, of 402 Elder Drive, Claremont.

The collision knocked Miss Lambert to the pavement, but she was released from Pomona Valley Community Hospital after treatment for bruises and scrapes.

In Pomona, Fred Snedeker, 20, a resident of Kellogg Valley Inn at 2180 Valley Blvd., Pomona, was hit by a car when he attempted to run across Valley Boulevard west of Roselawn Avenue.

Police identified the driver of the car as George Timothy Sinichak, 28, of 604 Camino De Teodoro, Walnut.

Snedeker was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later transfered to County-USC Medical Center for observation. He was said to be in good condition.

Pomonans hurt in hit-and-run

Two Pomona men suffered minor injuries Thursday night when their car was struck by a hit-and-run vehicle and then hit a post before overturning.

Arthur Beltran, 71, 4136 Ninth St., the driver, and Clarence Spieth, 54, 4138 Ninth St., his passenger, were treated at the Doctors Hospital in Montclair and later released.

Beltran was driving west on Mission Boulevard near Montclair about 11 p.m. when his car was struck by a sports car which had been observed being driven in an erratic manner, said highway patrolmen.

The impact caused Beltran to lose control and his auto knocked down a speed limit sign and several street markers before it overturned.

Three unhurt in collision

Three persons escaped injury early today when their car was struck from the rear on Holt Avenue near Park Avenue in Pomona.

Police identified the men as Gregory Dwayn Dunning, 23, of 1793 Larkspur Ave., Pomona, Robert Earl Taylor, 28, of 4712 Canoga St., Montclair, and Eddie Mix Jr., 24, of 158 Bellhaven Place, Claremont.

All were examined for injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later released.

Police said the men, with Dunning driving, were west-bound on Holt Avenue when their car was hit from the rear by a vehicle driven by Steven James Gardner, 24, of 929 Cameron St., West Covina at about 12:30 a.m.

Gardner, said police, had apparently fallen asleep at the wheel.

Orient, South Pacific tour for two women

Law enforcement duo plans trip

Ontario police Patrolman Katie Zbinden and West End sheriff's Deputy Shirley Burt are teaming up to take a special 29-day Orient and South Pacific law enforcement tour in September.

Both women were among the first women assigned to regular police patrol duties in the West End, and their fellow officers say they have since proven themselves capable of handling nearly any law enforcement task from arresting drunks, men or women, to arresting dangerous felons.

The two officers have one thing in common — both want to be just "good cops." For both, a special Orient and South Pacific law enforcement conference for police and criminal justice personnel sponsored by the California Narcotics Officers' Association and the California State University Department of Criminal Justice seemed to be just the ticket to improve their law enforcement skills.

Officers Burt and Zbinden taking courses through Cal State found out about the special tour and decided to team up. Both women managed to save enough money from their own paychecks and set aside three weeks of their annual vacation to make the tour.

Their tour will begin with a flight to Tokyo, Japan via Honolulu, Hawaii on Aug. 31.

In Japan the tour group, including the West End officers and 15 other policemen will be given briefings and tour the Tokyo Criminal Investigation Agency, the Japanese National Police College, and the Imperial Supreme Court of Japan in addition to visiting the famous tourist attractions in the area.

From Japan, they will venture to Taipei, Taiwan where they plan to visit the National Senior Police Training College and the Taiwan National Supreme Court. From Taipei they will fly to the British Protectorate of Hong Kong and possibly observe a heroin manufacturing laboratory and tour Lok Ma Chock border station of Red China.

They will also be touring police facilities in Macao, Singapore, Sidney, Auckland, and Papetee before returning on Sept. 24.

Officer Zbinden, who since becoming a regular patrolman on the Ontario police force has had an interest in police equipment and its uses, said she was particularly interested in the heavy police equipment other national police forces use, and the newest equipment used in detecting narcotic smuggling.

Deputy Burt said she is interested in the methods used by other international police agencies in detecting and reducing drug trafficking.

Leading the special Orient and South Pacific tour will be Richard Grace, associate professor of criminal justice and police science at Cal State, recently presented the U.S. Department of Justice Education Service Award and currently the national vice president of the International Police Association — United States Section.

TALKING ABOUT TRIP

Ontario Police Officer Katie Zbinden, left, confers with West End sheriff's Deputy Shirley Burt about plans for their upcoming trip to the Orient and South Seas with other police officers to study foreign law enforcement agencies and narcotics enforcement in September.

Kansas man hits train, not hurt

A 23-year-old man from Coffeyville, Kan. escaped injury Thursday night when he drove his car into the side of a Southern Pacific freight train in Hacienda Heights.

The man was identified by Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies as Christopher Cunningham.

Bike-a-thon will aid lung programs

Lung Associations throughout Southern California will benefit from a bike-a-thon conducted by the Independent Order of Foresters.

The event will have two phases. A local ride by entrants of all ages is scheduled Saturday and 20 long distance riders representing IOF courts will participate in a 500-mile ride starting Sunday and continuing until Aug. 28.

Happy Days star Ron Howard is the honorary chairman.

Valley riders will go about 20 miles starting at 8:30 a.m. from the Hirschmann Building, 9550 Flair Drive, El Monte.

The 500-mile ride starts from Woodley Park in San Fernando Valley and extends through the Southland to San Diego.

Funds will be raised to support Lung Association programs in community service, health education and medical research from pledges by merchants and individuals per mile for the entrant of their choice both in the distance and shorter one-day event.

Further information regarding participation and support of the bike-a-thon may be obtained by calling William Keyser at (213) 483-3220.

Getting handle on CB boom

The hottest topic of public interest tnis year is not the Bicentennial or even the presidential election. Be advised, good buddy, that it's Citizens Band (CB) radio.

CB has captured the fancy and imagination of Americans like almost nothing since the advent of home television three decades ago. Everyone, from truck drivers (who started the current boom during the 1973 gasoline shortage) to stay-at-homes, from school kids to the nation's First Lady (known by her "handle" of First Mama) seems to want to communicate by radio.

One measure of this soaring interest is the number of applicants for CB licenses. The Federal Communications Commission's issuing office in Gettysburg, Pa., is being swamped with half a million applications each month, compared to 30,000 a month a few years ago.

Another measure is the mushrooming appearance of new publications serving the CB market. There are now at least 40 magazines devoted to CB, according to Burson-Marsteller, the public relations-public affairs specialist, reporting on a just-completed survey of the field. This time last year, there were only four. Another seven magazines, all of them less than year old, deal with CB trade subjects such as marketing and retailing.

CB is also invading the newspapers and finding a place alongside the crossword puzzles and bridge columns. Newspaper Enterprise Association, for one example, has just introduced a weekly column called "CB Convac." ("Convac" is CB-ese for conversation.)

In addition, the wire services are producing and distributing CB features and interviews, and radio and TV are devoting more time to the subject.

Researchers at Burson-Marsteller predict that the CB boom will generate equipment and related sales of more than $1 billion this year and that the boom will continue unabated until 1979, especially since the FCC recently increased the number of channels from 23 to 40.

From 1979 on, they say, CB is likely to have the commonality of today's television, with Americans tuning into CB as routinely as they turn on TV, both at home and on the road.

Marconi, what hath thou wrought?

Taxes tell the tale

The politicians of both parties, with popular approval, are running so hard against Washington this year — against "big government" — that the steady, continuous growth of "little government" is taking place almost unnoticed.

Consider just this fact: Combined state and local taxes jumped by 8.6 per cent last year to a record $147 billion, reports Commerce Clearing House. This was an increase of $11.7 billion over the $153.3 billion collected in 1974, which was itself a record.

While state tax revenues at $82.9 billion were well above the $64.1 billion collected at the local level, local taxes went up faster on a percentage basis — 10.6 per cent compared to 7.1 per cent.

Individual income taxes registered the greatest overall increase, 10.4 per cent, followed by property taxes at 10 per cent. But state and local income from all tax sources — sales, business, motor fuel, etc. — all recorded increases in most states.

Three states — California, West Virginia and Wyoming — reported sales tax gains of at least 20 per cent or more, with West Virginia topping the list at 31.4 per cent.

Taxes tell only one part of the story of state and local government growth. According to the United States Chamber of Commerce, in the last decade state and local government employment has grown four times as fast as employment in the general economy — and seven times as fast as the number of federal employes. We really ought to put an "s" on the end of "big government."

Think on these things

The first signs of autumn have already appeared in many areas . . . Vines that have slowly crept to the top of the old oaks are tinged with scarlet . . . and the hackberries have clusters of gold leaves glowing in the late evening sun.

Early morning breezes are fresh and crisp . . . even though they revert to summer later in the day . . . The bluejay and cardinal call clearly through the woods and the squirrels have begun their storage of acorns and pecans.

Harvest has been going on now for days and the scent of fresh mowed hay still hangs in the air . . . and we know that what seems to be the final days of summer is really the blending of the end of one season with the beginning of a beautiful new one . . . both alive and warmly rewarding for the eyes and spirit.

The key to participation

Dear Editor:

Ignorance breeds misunderstanding, divisiveness, permissiveness and contempt for the rights of others . . . the costly detriments which despoil justness and wholesomeness, which deny equality-of-access, and which destroy the values upon which our society is premised. Our Constitutional Republic cannot sustain its integrity without an enlightened electorate willing to publicly defend the values, freedoms and privileges we equate with responsibleness.

Too many citizens naively are "convinced" that individual access and justice are not equal for "underprivileged" minorities; and indeed there exists much disrespect for some "elements" of such underprivileged sectors. But equality-of-access within our society is fundamentally available alike to all citizens. The "inequality" exists in the unawareness of the processes through which to respectfully participate . . . of how to possess the freedoms, to pursue literacy, to utilize the power of the secret ballot, and to patriotically participate in the responsibilities of citizenship.

The fact that many citizens have acquired no defensible concept of the purposes and processes of our system-of-government or of our free-enterprise system of economics, is entirely inexcusable.

It is difficult to accept responsibility without the willingness to respectfully, learn, understand and participate within our rules of democracy wherein all citizens may earn respect, privilege, well-being and security proportionate with the degree to which responsibleness can be reciprocated. And it is indeed frustrating to expect (unearned) values and privilege to be "for free" at the expense of responsible citizens.

The ability to accept responsibility concerns only the willingness to respectfully learn and earn. No citizen is ever perfect. Our educational media are always available to all who earnestly try to better their minds, their lot and their credentials of citizenship.

It is almost impossible to earn respect or to enjoy the rights, privileges or access to opportunity, without first making the effort to acquire "the ability to speak, read and write in ordinary usage in English" — the key to full participation in all the mutually-beneficial values and betterments available within our society.

We, or our forefathers, all were "foreigners" at one time in our history. No immigrant ever became an "instant" full-fledged citizen. And the patriots of our "Bicentennial Era" must be known by no distinguishments of race, creed or color.

The attitude for acquiring the status of responsible citizenship, is not that of non-cooperation, of temerity, of militancy or subversiveness — but rather that of the willingness to respectfully work within the public and national interest to achieve equal-access and better living standards. But few responsible citizens would not go out of their way to patriotically help any person of "underprivileged" status who is willing to become a better citizen. But by the same token, most responsible Citizens will waste no time with those unwilling to respect the "Rules of our Society" or who would selectively reject our Constitutional principles and lawful processes.

Hays: The final chapter

WASHINGTON — The meanest man in Congress, Rep. Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, has given up the fight. He has been brought down by a bosomy blonde who wanted publicity to sell a book and promote herself. This is the story of his final days.

It's the story of an outrageous, shoot-from-the-hip curmudgeon who abused his power. But it is also the story of a tired old man, deeply in love with his wife, bedeviled by his former mistress, weary of the turmoil.

He talked of killing himself to spare his wife more painful publicity. He took an overdose of sleeping pills — by mistake, he later insisted. Finally, he decided to withdraw from Congress for the sake of his wife's parents.

By sheer orneriness, Hays became one of the most powerful men in the House. He was "mean, arrogant, cantankerous and tough," he admitted to his colleagues. They kept out of his way.

Most of them enjoyed his plight, therefore, when Elizabeth Ray revealed to the world their sordid relationship. It was a story we had turned down two years earlier. She had called our office in a hysterical crying fit. She was about to lose her job, she sobbed, because she "would not go to bed with Wayne Hays."

We learned that she was having an affair with Hays, all right. But she also performed secretarial services in return for her congressional salary. Our associates, Jack Cloherty and Bob Owens, called on her in her office. Contrary to her later claims, she could type and answer the phone. They saw her do it.

She called our office repeatedly. We found her erratic, unreliable and unpredictable. From sources who knew her well, we established that she had not become Hays' mistress against her will. On the contrary, he had tried to break off the relationship. Then she had threatened to take her story to the press. Other times, she had threatened to cause a scene in his office unless he took her out.

She staged at least one scene after a heated argument about Hays' impending marriage to another secretary, Pat Peak. The Capitol police were summoned to remove Ray from the congressman's office. Afterward, she phoned a friend, who later told us about the call. "I really put on a good act," Ray boasted. "I made the police feel sorry for me."

Hays went ahead with the marriage, and his spurned mistress told her story to the Washington Post. There is reason to believe that she had been preparing material for a book all along, a book that she later sold.

Hays at first denied having an affair with Elizabeth Ray. "Hell, I'm a happily married man," he said. He lied, his friends say, to protect his marriage. But the Washington Post reporters had carefully nailed down the evidence. He finally confessed to having had a "personal relationship" with Ray. He denied, however, that she did no work for her government salary.

Sources close to Hays say the publicity almost wrecked the new marriage. He would plunge into a deep gloom or suddenly cheer up, they say, in direct relationship to how his wife was reacting.

At one point, we persuaded the harassed Hays to drop by our office. He was not the churlish, defiant curmudgeon we had known. The old fire was gone. He was totally subdued. He slumped into our office; he spoke in a voice barely audible.

He told of the effect the publicity was having on his wife. To spare her further anguish, he said: "I would put a bullet through my head." Then he added meaningfully: "And I've got the guts to do it."

He made similar statements to a congressman who later reported it to us. But after he recovered from an overdose of sleeping pills, he swore it had not been a suicide attempt.

Subsequently, we spoke to him on the phone in Ohio. He was encouraged by the favorable polls and friendly crowds, he said. All his campaign lieutenants, he added, wanted him to stay in the race. He talked like a man who intended to run for reelection.

We learned, meanwhile, that Hays had put a man on the U.S. payroll who did less work than Liz Ray. He is a Democratic party worker named Paul Pendergast who draws $17,235 a year as an assistant Sergeant at Arms. Yet he doesn't even have a desk in the Sergeant at Arms office.

Instead, we found that he was working for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. His duties are strictly political; his main function is to raise funds for Democratic congressional candidates.

The Democrats pay him $20,000 a year. But thanks to Hays, Pendergast also draws another $17,235 in federal pay. The federal appointment also makes him eligible for a generous pension and other benefits unavailable in the political post.

We called Hays last Thursday for his comment. Back came a statement that he had merely followed precedent and had been backed by the House leadership. A few hours later, he announced his decision to retire from the House. His press secretary, Carol Clawson, said he made the decision after getting our inquiry.

But Hays told friends that he threw in the towel not because of our story but because of a prolonged Washington Post investigation of his father-in-law, Leonard Peak. The aggravation had sent Peak to the hospital and had upset his wife, a heart patient, Hays charged.

He claimed he had planned to leave Congress after another term anyway. "I didn't want someone killed over two more years in Congress," he said.

Just in jest

Contrary to what most home owners contend, there ARE ways to make home owning financially possible. And with a little careful planning, the home owner can also enjoy his leisure hours without the necessity of spending most of his time working to keep the place in shape. All it takes is a bit of careful forethought.

First, in order to save on gas bills, one should always install a solar heater. Then it would be wise to build a windmill to run a generator and thus provide your own electricity. Naturally, since he has the windmill, the home owner should also dig a well and pump his own water. By keeping a couple of sheep, he can make sure his front lawn is always mowed and fertilized. And a pair of pigs will make it unnecessary to invest in a garbage disposal.

If he makes sure to get male and female sheep and pigs, the home owner can later dine on roast lamb and barbecued piglets at half what it would cost if he purchased them at his local meat market. It also helps if a share cropper can be found who will plant a vegetable garden in the home owner's back yard. — Having done all that, the final and most important thing of all is to get something on the tax assessor. With the aid of a little blackmail in that direction, an average citizen can then actually afford to own his own home.

Legislature has sad record

By EARL G. WATERS

Is the full time "professional" Legislature concept working? As the great Al Smith would say, "Let's look at the record."

The time is August 1976. The lawmakers have just returned from a month's summer recess. All that remains of the two-year session which convened in December 1974 are the few days before final adjournment on Aug. 31. All that is, excepting 2,500 bills on the unfinished calendar. That represents about one-third of the total number introduced during the entire period.

In other words, the legislators were undertaking to do half as much in a 30-day period as they had done in the 610 preceding days. That, of course, is only in terms of numbers. Actually what had gone before was mostly trivia. The problems of major importance were still before them. Property taxes, school financing, unemployment, and crime remained unsolved.

The task ahead wasn't monumental, it was impossible. Some of the committees had as many as 60 or more bills scheduled for a single hearing. Simple mathematics show that if each bill were to be given as much as 10 minutes the committee would be in session for a solid ten hours. Common sense dictates that complex laws, some of many pages, cannot be read and understood in so short a time let alone afford a fair hearing for proponents and opponents.

After so long a session such a last minute logjam is indefensible. The claims made in behalf of the two-year continuous sessions and a full time "professional" Legislature was to eliminate the logjams and bring about other "improvements." They now seem hollow.

The plain truth is that the need for "improvement" was only in the minds of those members enamored with the idea of making careers out of legislative service. They conjured up the continuous sessions as a device to justify salary increases commensurate with full time jobs.

For more than 100 years the California Legislature met as a body of "citizen-legislators" who held office as a public duty. For many years the pay was a mere $100 a month. This was increased in 1948 to $300 and later to $500. But a ballot proposition in 1966 authorized annual sessions and set the pay at $16,000. It contained however a little joker which permitted the solons to thereafter set their own pay. Since then they have done so, gradually increasing it to $23,232 annually, effective in December.

That isn't the only thing that has increased. Where the Legislature under the old system operated at a yearly cost of a million dollars or so, this year it has approached the astronomical figure of $60 million.

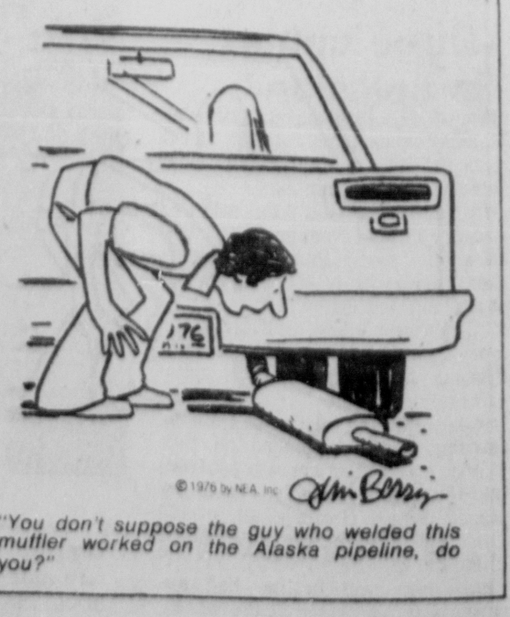

The members salaries and generous fringe benefits aren't alone responsible for the increased costs. In fact the major expense is its payroll. Under the former system the few employes necessary to the legislative operation were hired on a part time basis. Today aides and secretaries are so numerous they have to be introduced to each other and are often confused with the members or vice versa.

To illustrate the growth, in 1951 the Senate had only one full time employe. Today the Legislature employs nearly 2,000 persons, most on all year status and most at pay considerably higher than that for the average state worker.

One might justify such a dramatic increase in costs by showing that today the Legislature deals more promptly and effectively with state problems. That isn't the case. Not only has the legislative process become more confusing and more oblique, but the hordes of aides buffer the members and make them more distant from those they represent.

Neither is having the lawmakers on the job full time serving to make government more efficient and economical. The state budget has more than tripled since the advent of the annual sessions rising from $4 billion to over $12 billion and local government costs have had similar rises.

California ceramics and from Claremont

For a long time I have tried to find ceramics made in California.

Probably I don't know the right place to look, because I don't see any trace of them.

I'm looking in particular for a miniature pitcher or creamer, the type that usually comes with a sugar bowl.

A cousin of mine who lives near Venice, Italy, collects such pitchers from different countries. I would like to send her one made in California. — M. P., Pomona.

You might find a pitcher to please your cousin at the Claremont Clay Workshop Gallery in Griswold's Old School House, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards, Claremont.

If you don't, go to the studio in the same building. They'll make one to order for you.

I'm trying to obtain a birth certificate for a friend of mine.

She was born in Wagner, Okla. She has written three times to explain that her mother's maiden name was the same as her married name. — E. B., Pomona.

You provided us with detailed information regarding your friend's birth, family and life.

We sent it to the Oklahoma State Department of Health.

Roger C. Pirron, state registrar of vital statistics, responded with even more details on what you need to do to obtain a delayed certificate of birth.

He sent them directly to your friend, along with information on fees.

I would appreciate very much your help in finding the name and address of either the company who makes Princess China or the distributor.

I purchased my set about 15 years ago and have broken several pieces that I would like very much to replace.

On the bottom of each piece is the logo: Princess China, Tru-Tone, U.S.A. — Mrs. H. R., Pomona.

We wrote to two companies that the name Princess in connection with china they produce, but neither had a logo matching the one you write about.

We hope readers can help you.

I am an elderly widow. My husband died six months ago.

The mortuary applied for $255 to be sent to the survivor. I have never received it.

Also, I have not been getting the increased amount of Social Security benefits I should receive since my husband's death.

Can you help with this in any way? — A.P., Pomona.

When we contacted local Social Security Administration staff members, we learned they already had done considerable work toward solving your problem.

Two days after we got in touch with them, you received a lump sum of $800.

Thoughts

If then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth. — Colossians 3:12.

Astrographs

For Saturday, Aug. 21, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to let minor differences between you and one you love spoil your day. Be the first to say "I'm sorry."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Treat all your friends equally today. Playing favorites will produce hard feelings and hurt someone unnecessarily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In some instances you'll manage resources wisely; in others, your judgment will be impractical. A day of gains and losses.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to be a bit temperamental today and cause some problems that could be easily skirted. Control your moods.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although you'll be tempted to do otherwise, it's best you say nothing when the name of someone you dislike is brought up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't pressure someone you know socially for a business favor today. There may be a good reason why he doesn't want to grant it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Worldly ambitions should be given a rest today. Take time to enjoy the other good things life has to offer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A gentle approach will get others to do your bidding today far easier than a brash one will. Saying "please" works wonders.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Just because someone is a pal of one you like, it doesn't necessarily follow this person is equally as ethical. Be careful when doing business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are two ways for you to do things today; the hard way and the right way. Choose the latter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Give whomever you're working for today a fair shake. Don't ask for full compensation for a job only half-done.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who always gets himself in a bind may be looking for you to bail him out again today. Let him stand on his own feet.

Your Birthday Aug. 21, 1976

Before moving on to the new this year, get the maximum yield possible from the seeds you've sown. Don't leave your harvest on the vine.

Ann Landers

No logic behind legislation

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a high school junior, disturbed by the regulations governing the sale of contraceptives.

A friend of mine who works in a drugstore buys them for me. (I'm a male.) However, many of my friends have sex without protection because it isn't readily available.

Why is the law so unrealistic? Keeping contraceptives out of the hands of 16- and 17-year-olds does not discourage sexual intercourse. If young people want to have sex, they will have it. They'd rather use protection, but if it isn't available, they will go ahead and take chances.

Can you explain from an adult's viewpoint the logic behind such legislation? Two of my closest friends are suffering because of it. — F.M. (Brookline, Mass.)

Dear F.M.: There is no logic behind such legislation. The law is a bummer. Unavailability of contraceptives will rarely discourage anybody. All that law does is help to increase the number of teenage pregnancies in Massachusetts.

Dear Ann Landers: I was one of the original Women's Libbers — proud of the fact that my husband encouraged me to take trips out of town "for the cause." He gave me total freedom and I loved it. All my housebound women friends envied me. He kept encouraging me to "do my own thing," because he was busy working. Or so I thought.

While I was "libbing it up" I later learned that Mr. Generosity was having himself a ball. The rat entertained women in our bedroom, took bimbos on weekend trips, even did the high-school bit — made love in the car, on the beach and in a haystack.

He later bragged to me that several young girls wanted to marry him (he's 50 years old and has money, of course). So tell your "liberated" women readers not to outsmart themselves. It happened to me and I have only myself to blame. — A Moron In Eureka, Calif.

Dear Eureka: I doubt that your freedom had much to do with your husband's alley-catting. A 50-year-old who makes love in cars, beaches, and haystacks yet, is clearly a case of arrested development. So stop blaming yourself, honey. He's bonkers.

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote to you many years ago and your advice helped me a lot. I'm turning to you again with a problem I can't discuss with anyone.

How long does it take for a man to stop talking about his wife who passed away several years ago?

I am going with a widower who chased around with everything in town while his wife was living. Now that she is dead, all of a sudden she is a saint and her name is mentioned every hour. He wants me to marry him and share his home, but his wife's picture is in every room and this makes me uncomfortable.

My husband died five years ago and I never mention his name, because I know how I feel when my friend talks about his wife. We are both in our 60s and our children are all grown.

Shall I marry this man? I am lonely and so is he. You are going to decide. — Very Mixed Up

Dear V.M.U.: No, I'm not. I don't have to live with him. The question you should be asking yourself: Is the irritation worth companionship in your twilight years? Nobody knows the answer but you.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. Sporting around boob tube

Naturally, now that August is here, the football season has started. (What happened to tangy autumn days, leaves changing color, breath visible in the air?) And baseball will go on until there is snow on the ground. The only really year round sport is basketball, starting in September and lasting through a century of playoffs and finals (best 25 out of 27). Pro basketballteers play the final-final-final game of the season, pour champagne on each other, and show up the next morning for the first practice for the next season. I'll say round-the-calendar job.

The important thing for the average sports fans is to keep his head while all about him are losing theirs. Establish your TV-watching techniques for each sport, and don't vary them. There are some subtle changes that differentiate viewing various athletic engagements, and these must be closely adhered to.

Granted, there are several standards that hold for any sport. First you send the kids to the movies; you take the phone off the hook; you tell your wife you'll "get at the lawn tomorrow." You pull up your easy chair in front of the tube.

Baseball-watching, of course, requires a six-pack of beer, several bags of peanuts, and a hot dog or two, easy on the mustard. It is practically illegal in the U. S. of A. to watch a ball game without a cold beer and a mouthfull of peanuts. (Take the shells off first, idiot!)

Settling down for your weekly trauma of watching the Rams blow one requires more fortification than beer. Here you want a tumbler of burbon neat, with a roast beef sandwich on the side. You will also want some reading material to carry you through the interminable delays, pauses, and "right back after this announcement."

Tennis watchers, of whom there are millions more today than there were yesterday, are drawn to a long, cool drink — a Tom Collins, perhaps, or a minut julep. Somehow these refreshers are more suitable to the clean, crisp play on the court and the clean, crisp costumes of the performers. At a tennis match, beer just doesn't do it. For more solid sustenance, there should be a dainty, bride-table sandwiches, some stuffed eggs and perhaps a dollop of caviar.

Viewers of the golf tourneys, the Masters, the Open, the PGA, have similar elitest tastes. For a proper perspective on a golf match, one should have by his side a shaker of martinis, a box of Wheat Thins and potato chips with avocado dip. The sight of Weiskopf shanking his drive or Nicklaus blowing a two-foot putt are made all the more delicious by a cold marti and a handful of potato chips.

Each TV sport has its basic requirements. Ice hockey watchers want beer and hamburgers; bowling fans need hot coffee and cheese sandwiches. People who watch boxing matches and auto races will eat and drink anything.

Now that there are 36 different athletic encounters on the tube each night, leave us all prepare our nocturnal cuisines to be sure we are properly prepared for our favorite sporting endeavors.

It is any wonder that all sports fans have pot bellies?

Dr. Lamb

Daily headaches from tension

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am in good general health except for one problem. In the past six to nine months I have been plagued with headaches. Their frequency and intensity have increased to where I have at least one headache per day. These are not throbbing headaches but seem like a great deal of pressure over the entire head and behind my eyes. Also the sides and back of my neck are sore when I have these headaches.

I have tried various brands of aspirins and other pain relievers to no avail. I haven't been able to find any consistent reasons for this pain, such as tension, undereating, allergies, etc. However, I sometimes get a brief period of relief shortly after eating.

I stopped taking birth control pills, but this did not seem to be causing the problem.

Could you please give me your opinions on the reasons for my headaches? If you feel there is a definite need to see a doctor would it be advisable to first see an M.D., a neurologist, or some other specialist?

DEAR READER — Headache is man's most common pain. About 90 per cent of all people experience a headache from time to time. Headaches can be caused by an acute illness as with a sinus infection or even with any febrile illness. Aside from these, most headaches are caused by tension associated with the emotional stress of living. Since we haven't found any good ways to live and not have any emotional stress it is likely that headaches will continue to be a part of life for most people at one time or another — at least during periods of stress.

There is at least a 90 per cent chance that your headache is in the anxiety-depression type group, as are most headaches. The fact that you have not gotten relief from aspirin or other pain relieving medicines is a strong point in favor of this opinion. The generalized location with the discomfort you feel at the base of the head or back of the neck is also consistent with this type of headache.

Those headaches are a warning from your psychic that you are not tolerating the stresses and strains of your own life situations. Examine your life for tensions and conflicts and see if you can make life a little easier for yourself. Taking tranquilizers will not really help with these headaches but resolution of the anxiety provoking stresses or factors causing depression may really help a great deal.

You do not have migraine headaches. The location and symptoms are not indicative of that at all. I would recommend that you try to get some relaxation away from the more intense parts of your life. A vacation may be in order.

When the headache strikes try some heat to the back of the neck and some gentle massage. Rest with a heating pad under the back of the head and neck area. Then move your head gently in all directions and try to loosen up your muscles. Massage gently the muscles over the side of your head.

Anyone who has recurrent headaches should see a doctor and a good place for you to start is with your family doctor. Let him decide if you really need to see anyone else or not. Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain. Others who want information on headaches can obtain this issue by sending a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Jacoby's bridge

Keep brain on during play

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand that may well have decided the 1950 Vanderbilt Cup competition.

At both tables the queen of diamonds was led against the seven-club contract. One declarer called for the ace of diamonds, without any thought. Then he thought for several minutes before discarding his jack of spades. Several minutes later he was one down.

The other declarer did his thinking before playing from dummy and finally called for a low diamond. He ruffed, cashed the ace of spades to see what happened, cashed the ace of hearts for a second look at possibilities and then played the king of spades. When that dropped the queen he led to dummy's ace of clubs, discarded his four of hearts on the ace of diamonds, came back to his hand with a heart, drew trumps and claimed his grand slam.

This grand slam swing decided a first-round match. The lucky winners then went on to win the tournament.

No point value is given to tens and nines yet they are very important cards, particularly at notrump. Your normal holding is one of each. If you happen to hold two of each you can count a 15-point balanced hand as worth 16.

If you hold three tens you definitely should raise your initial notrump count by one point.

How bridal got name

Ecclesiastes 10-20 reads: "Revile not the king, no, not in thy thought; and revile not the rich in thy bedchamber for a bird of the heavens shall carry the voice and that which hath wings shall carry the matter." Our Language man says that fancy bit of poetry was where we got the kitchen-vernacular phrase: "A little bird told me."

It has been widely reported that the four basic tastes are salty, sweet, sour and bitter. Can you figure out which of these is the primary taste of fish? It's sweet.

EPILEPSY

Q. "Which of our presidents' wives had epilepsy?"

A. Ida McKinley. That's why President William McKinley set aside previous White House protocol to let his wife sit beside him at state dinners. He wanted her close.

Ants, too, talk to one another, that's been proved. Though scientists have taken pictures of the sound waves with oscilloscopes, they haven't yet been able to translate that ant talk. Stand by, however.

More than half the people on earth rely solely on animal muscle for power.

THREAD OF GASOLINE

Is it conceivable that a thread no thicker than the hair from a horse's tail could tow a car for 15 miles? If that thread were made of gasoline, it is. A gallon of gasoline squirted into a fine stream over 15 miles would be of such horsehair thickness. And give or take a mile or few, depending, that's how far that gallon will move that car, sir.

Rum, too, originated in China . . . Tea used to be pronounced "tay" . . . Dogs do, indeed, get hayfever.

The map makers have never drawn a map that needs more than four colors, yet peculiarly, they've not been able to prove that four colors are enough for any map.

GOP's origin

CHICAGO (AP) — The Republican party's nickname, the G.O.P., is an abridged version of "Grand Old Party."

According to The World Book Encyclopedia, this surname comes from "Grand Old Man," the nickname of William E. Gladstone, a liberal British prime minister of the 1800s.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 54 years as a fireman, George Washington Ryst, 83, retired recently.

He joined the department in 1922, became a lieutenant in 10 years, and captain in another eight. For the past 22 years, he has worked at fire prevention.

When San Francisco made retirement mandatory at 65, those already working for the department were exempted, so Ryst stayed on.

Dystrophy event

The Jerry Lewis skate-a-thon Wednesday at the Holiday Roller Rink in Montclair will raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

Proceeds will be donated to the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon by the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association of America (RSRPA), the sport's official organization. This year's RSROA goal is more than $1.4 million, according to rink owner Jim Elder.

The local skate-a-thon will start at 2 p.m. and continue until midnight. Entry fee is $2. The public is invited to participate and may pick up sponsor sign-up sheets at the rink at any time.

A skater enters the event by paying the entry fee, then skates for 50 minutes of each hour, and obtains sponsors to pay the skater for every hour skated. The proceeds are pledged to MDA.

Trophies will be awarded to skaters turning in the most money, those securing the most sponsors and a special trophy will be awarded to both the youngest and oldest 10-hour skater.

Proceeds from the benefit skate-a-thon will be used by MDA to combat the muscular dystrophies and related neuromuscular diseases, including myositis and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

MDA, which supports over 275 neuromuscular disease research projects in laboratories throughout the United States and in 16 foreign countries, has recently established a network of university-based research centers to accelerate its efforts to find cures or effective treatments for neuromuscular disease.

In addition, the health agency maintains 150 free diagnostic and treatment clinics in the United States, Puerto Rico and Guam.

Supervisor urges road improvement

The Corona Expresway needs to be improved to freeway standards and state officials should include the necessary funds in the six-year highway planning program, said San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend.

The expressway, which extends through Pomona and the Chino area to the Riverside Freeway carries more than 12,000 vehicles daily and has been the site for 115 traffic accidents during the past three years.

"Fifty-two injuries and one death in only three years should be enough to convince anyone that the roadway needs some work. I can't see stalling this project any longer when people are repeatedly being seriously hurt," he added.

Townsend said the state highway budget for the district of San Bernardino and Riverside counties has been decreased by more than $80 million since April and funds have been shifted from road construction to beautification projects.

Noting that he supports landscaping and roadside rests, the Chino supervisor stressed that safety to the motoring public must be the primary concern.

Three projects now planned for San Bernardino County includes the widening of a short stretch of Interstate 15, widening of Euclid Avenue from Riverside Drive to Merrill Avenue near Chino and initial construction of a freeway interchange near Redlands.

When the Corona Expressway was designed, it was porposed the roadway would be expanded to at least four lanes and a freeway standard, Townsend said.

"It is preposterous that we are planning to put substantial funds into improvements of such projects as the Palmdale Road which over the past three years has had only 26 traffic accidents and which carries 8,000 vehicles daily."

Townsend said the state last April had proposed spending $238 million in San Bernardino and Riverside counties, but this was later reduced to $158 million.

He obtained support by other supervisors to seek inclusion of the expressway work in the state's planning program.

Garey High opening

George H. Bloch, principal of Garey High School in Pomona, said school will start there on Sept. 14.

Minimum days will be held Sept. 14, 15, 16 and 17 with students attending from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Students new to Garey, and those registered who have not received schedules, may call the school at 623-5251, Ext. 342, and make appointments with counselors.

Counselors will be on duty starting Sept. 6, Bloch said.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES THE EARTHWORM DIG ITS BURROW?" EDIE WINTERS CREEDE, CO

A. THE EARTHWORM DIGS ITS BURROW BY PUSHING AND EATING ITS WAY THROUGH THE SOIL

DICK ROGERS 8/20

As we can guess from its name, the earthworm lives in the ground. It digs its burrow by pushing its way through the soil.

To move forward, it grips the dirt with tiny, stiff bristles ont he tail end of its body. Then it stretches its body forward. This action pushes the head through the dirt.

Then the earthworm grips the dirt under its head and pulls up the tail end of its body.

As the worm tunnels, it eats its way through the layers of earth which it cannot push through easily and digests the dead plant material in the soil.

The soil passes through the earthworm's long body and is usually deposited above ground in little heaps of dirt balls, called castings.

The earthworm usually stays underground by day. At night it may put its head out of its burrow to find bits of leaves and grass to eat.

Earthworms are helpful to farmers and gardeners. By digging burrows, they help enrich the soil.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Are Chinese laundries a thing of the past?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coin-operated washing machines, drip-dry fabrics and inflation have ganged up to take the starch out of a former fixture of cosmopolitan San Francisco — the Chinese laundry.

The industry has been in a spin since the early 1950s when do-it-yourself laundries tumbled on to the scene. According to the Chinese Laundry Owner's Association, there were 60 Chinese laundries operating in San Francisco in 1960 — compared to 20 now.

"There is money around, but no one wants to invest in a laundry. It's a dead horse," said Choon Yee, a third-generation laundry operator. "For 60 cents you can wash 10 shirts in a coin machine. Now even the apartment houses have their own machines."

Yee's grandfather started the family laundry business in 1888. Yee is 54 and the father of three children, but he doubts the laundry will be passed on to the next generation of Yees.

"When an owner grows old, that's it," he said. "He just closes up, there's no new owner to take over.

The history of Chinese laundries in San Francisco dates back to the 1850s, when the Chinese arrived by the thousands, many to work in the mines. In 1876, 300 Chinese laundries dotted the city's hills, employing 1,500 workers.

The next year, however, an anti-Chinese mob invaded Chinatown and destroyed 25 laundries. Legislation aimed at driving the Chinese out of the laundry business was enacted by the city Board of Supervisors.

The Chinese fought back. In 1886, the Supreme Court ruled in the case of Yick Wo vs. Hopkins that the Chinese were entitled to equal protection under the law in accordance with the 14th Amendment.

Now the Chinese are fighting an enemy that is harder to wipe away than the stains of bigotry — inflation.

"We're up against the wall. Overhead is killing us," said Lee Hing, another Chinese laundry operator.

In the past two years, Lee said, the cost of soap has risen from $10 to $20 a box, shirt boards from $90 to $260 a ton and wrapping paper from $3 to $13 a roll.

Chin Wah, 53, has been in the laundry business 30 years.

"We're paying $800 a month for rent," he said. "Each time property taxes go up, the rent goes up 20 per cent."

Still, Wah keeps his prices down, charging 42 cents to wash a shirt and 30 cents per bedsheet.

"We can't charge too much or we'll lose our customers," he said.

The lease on Wah's laundry is up at the end of the year.

"I don't know what will happen at that time," he said. "If the rent gets out of hand we might have to close up.

"We're old. Too old to find work elsewhere."

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Aug. 20, the 233rd day of 1976. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1791, a Danish navigator, Vitus Bering, discovered Alaska.

On this date —

In 1833, the 23rd American President, Benjamin Harrison, was born in North Bend, Ohio.

In 1914, during World War I, German forces occupied Brussels, Belgium.

In 1941, in World War II, the Russians blew up their Dnieper Dam as German troops swept across the Ukraine.

In 1955, hundreds were killed in anti-French riots in Morocco and Algeria.

In 1961, the East Germans were hurriedly building a wall along most of the 25-mile border between East and West Berlin.

In 1974, President Gerald Ford announced Nelson Rockefeller as his choice for Vice President.

Ten years ago: It was disclosed that the U.S. armed forces in South Vietnam had reached almost 300,000.

Five years ago: Leaders of Libya, Egypt and Syria signed a constitution designed to bind their countries to the Federation of Arab Republics.

One year ago: A U.S. spaceship bound for the planet Mars was launched from Cape Canaveral.

Today's birthday: Former baseball manager Al Lopez is 68.

Thought for today: I am a lover and have not found my thing to love. — Sherwood Anderson, American writer, 1876-1941.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Benjamin Franklin wrote to British Admiral Richard Howe that to propose now to the American Colonies that they submit to the British Crown would be fruitless because the temper of Americans was in favor of independence.

Music People

By CHET FLIPPO

NEW ORLEANS (KFS) — Some of the "people" are getting a little weary of waiting for the "people's band" to come on and play them some of the people's music here in the people's Sugar Bowl. The J. Geils Band finished their set many moments earlier but they're not really a people's band. Lynyrd Skynyrd just canceled their set because lead singer Ronnie Van Zant couldn't get out of bed over in Birmingham, so he is definitely not a people's her. It's ZZ Top, "that little ol' band from Texas," that the people await with little patience.

Why, talk about people's heroes — some of the people tell you that ZZ guitarist Billy Gibbons was down at the beach not too long ago in his Thunderbird, just cruising and checking things out, when he sees a copper pursuing one of the people who is fleeing with a sizable marijuana baggie. Billy just casually cuts off the cop car with his T-Bird just long enough for the kid to run into the surf and empty the baggie into the cleansing waters — to the people's cheers. Billy is carried down the beach on the people's shoulders: "Hooray for ZZ!"

RILED AND RIOTING

So here in the Sugar Bowl, when squads of coppers cut through the crowd — in wanton disregard of the people's right to consume marijuana — and try to make a few arrests, the people get riled up. They start heaving cans of Dixie — that's the people's beer — at those coppers. In short order, heads are being clubbed and bodies are falling right and left. Eighteen are carted away to the hospital, including one copper with a broken leg.

In sum, it's a fine, high-powered Southern evening for rock and roll. Beer and wine and fighting and fireworks everywhere and a 40,000-watt sound system wrenching your guts apart when ZZ finally gets up there on that custom-built, de-luxe Texas-shaped stage and starts exhorting the roaring throngs — 51,000 paid admissions — to "get high, everybody, get high!"

Not a bad reception for a band that most critics and many radio stations pretend doesn't exist, even though the band just drew over 250,000 to the first month of their 18-month "Worldwide Texas Tour." And, despite the fact that this power trio — guitar, bass, drums — sometimes sounds alarmingly like a steamhammer about to come apart, they're still putting out enough hard, gutty Texas blues-powered rock to build an awesome following.

SERIOUS STUFF

And that business about being a people's band is something both they and their fans take seriously. They were carefully built and guided in that direction by their manager, a Houston wunderkind named Bill Ham, who started the campaign in 1969.

"They are a people's band, and I knew that from the beginning," Ham will tell you, and in fact, when he gets expansive in recounting the long road they have traveled together and the obstacles they faced, he sounds very like Jimmy Carter talking about bypassing the vested interests and powerbrokers and going straight to the people. He was a record promo man in Houston when he met Gibbons and formed ZZ Top around him, adding bassist Dusty Hill and drummer Frank Beard, both veterans of bar bands and blues groups. Ham took the group to London Records and confidently told them, "I've got you your next Rolling Stones." They had had only one regional hit single, but London shared Ham's confidence to the extent of signing the group.

Ham started the long crusade, booking them anywhere to get to the "people," and soon the group was touring 200 to 300 days a year. They once drove to Alvin, Tex., to play the armory there and drew one (1) ticket-buyer. "We figured we might as well play for him," said Hill, "so we did four sets and between sets we'd go out and talk to him, buy the kid a coke."

NOTORIOUS AND BANNED

Back then, when it was even more of a liability than it is now to be from Texas and talk about it, Ham and the group traded on that identification and became "that little ol' band from Texas." Writing a song about Texas's most famous house of pleasure, "La Grange," didn't hurt their notoriety, either. Another popular ZZ song was banned by many radio stations solely because of the title.

Their careers received a megaboost in 1973 when the Rolling Stones tapped them to open their shows. The next year, ZZ drew 80,000 to a stadium show in Austin and quit wearing jeans on stage, having graduated to spangled $1,500 Nudie suits.

But they're quick to remind you that success hasn't alienated them from the "people."

Even in the midst of their multi-million dollar tour, they remain, in Gibbons's words, "beer drankers and hail raisers," playing beer-drinking, hell-raising music.

STILL HAPPY

Henry Winkler, starting his fourth season on ABC's comedy hit, Happy Days, wants to squelch the rumor that The Fonze is leaving the series. The rumor apparently started from Winkler's two-day absence from the rehearsals.

Bridges receives $250,000

The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich., has announced its intention of giving $250,000 to the campaign to renovate Bridges Auditorium of the Claremont Colleges. The gift, to be made in January 1978 will be a completion grant — the final amount needed to complete the funding.

The 45-year-old auditorium was closed last September for renovations including installations to meet safety codes, addition of ramps, elevator and restroom stalls for handicapped persons and improvement of stage lighting and rigging.

The colleges announced a campaign goal of $1,500,000 and a reopening date for October of 1977. With the Kresge Foundation pledge, both the success of the campaign and the reopening date seem assured. The total received or pledged stands at $1,167,294. The colleges have signed an $843,390 contract with the Noys Roach, Los Angeles general contractor, for all the construction and safety work and part of the stage work.

Contributions continue to come in for the rest of the projected renewal: new draperies, painting inside and out, overhaul of the more than 2,500 seats and renovation of the domed ceiling, which depicts signs of the zodiac in blue, silver and gold.

Bridges Auditorium is the largest college auditorium in the West. Its regular audiences include residents of at least 40 Southern California communities besides students of the six Claremont Colleges. Many of the world's most renowned singers, musicians, dancers, actors and political figures have appeared on the Bridges stage over the years.

It has been estimated that the replacement value of the big hall is $10,000,000.

During the past 53 years, the Kresge Foundation has made appropriations of more than $260 million to institutions in the fields of higher education, health services, the arts, social welfare, and the care of the young and the aging. Construction and major renovation of facilities is the foundation's primary concern. Grants usually are made on a challenge basis to encourage further fund-raising efforts.

'All I need is my self-respect'

Fonze happy in Happy Days

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I wish you would print that Henry Winkler is not leaving 'Happy Days.' People all over the country have been hearing rumors that I was walking out. I wouldn't do that. I know where I was before the series started, and I know where I am now. I do not take that lightly."

These were Henry Winkler's opening words as he reported for an interview during a rehearsal lunch break at Paramount Studio. After a two-day absence, he had appeared for the start of the fourth season of ABC's hit comedy, "Happy Days." He seemed content, but not noticeably happy. In fact, he did not smile during the entire conversation.

The actor talked about the incident that prompted rumors of his departure from the series:

"I was gone for two days but I did not hold up production; they were able to work around me. I did not report at the start of the season because I held a position which was morally correct.

"I realized that certain executives of the company (Paramount) were patting me on the back at the same time they were ripping me off. What they were paying me was a drop in the bucket compared to the earning power of the show.

"All I need is my self-respect and my life. Unfortunately, respect in this town comes from earning power, not ability. A craftsman no longer exists by his ability, but by the paraphenalia that surrounds success. So I decided to take a stand. What I did was correct."

Winkler said that he stayed away from negotiations, letting his lawyer do the work. His contract was improved, adding a larger share in the merchandizing of products bearing his likeness.

"Before, I had very little say in the merchandizing," he said, "and some bad things happened. Like selling panties that had my face next to a 13-year-old crotch. That's pretty tasteless. Now I will have a much more substantial say in what is sold."

Things are happening fast for the 30-year-old New Yorker. He has signed a contract with Universal Pictures for a movie, "Heroes," which he'll make after the "Happy Days" season ends in January. He is also close to a movie deal with his newly reconciled employers at Paramount.

This summer he broke records in Ohio with a three-week run in "Room Service" at a reported $30,000 a week. He was still glowing over the experience.

"It was like shifting into second gear at 50 miles an hour and blowing out all the carbon. I soared like an eagle. It was the best thing that could have happened to me at this time."

He is a serious, articulate man, totally unlike the hedonistic Arthur Fonzarelli he plays on the Tuesday night show. The crown of unruly brown hair makes him seem higher than his 5 feet, 6½. He is narrow-headed and slender, but strongly built.

Henry Winkler is no dropout. Son of a lumber corporation president and refugee from Nazi Germany, he studied in Switzerland, Emerson College in Boston and Yale Drama School, where he was awarded a Master of Fine Arts in 1970.

"Mostly I did TV commercials before I started 'Happy Days,'" he said. "I appeared on Broadway in a play that lasted one night, I did two films ('The Lords of Flatbush,' 'Crazy Joe'), appeared in six plays for free, took part in an improvisational theater. I always earned a living, mostly because of commercials (American Airlines, Closeup tooth paste); I never had to take a job as a waiter or anything else."

He came to Hollywood in 1973 and within a month landed the Fonz role in "Happy Days." He didn't even appear in the pilot film, had only seven lines in the first show. During the first two seasons he was merely one of the characters in the 1950s comedy, but he knew something was happening.

"The show went on the air in January," he recalled. "In May I arrived for an appearance in Little Rock and there were 2,000 people. In January this year I appeared in Detroit before 175,000 people. Some stood in line for three or four hours to enter the stadium. There were grandmothers and there were 2-year-olds. The appeal of Fonzie crosses all ages, all walks of life."

Winkler himself helped develop Fonzie, adding the leather jacket and boots, the thumbs-up salute, the self-confident "Aaaaayyy." The character really took off during the past season, when Fonzie moved into the Cunningham household with pal Richie (Ron Howard). Filming changed from a one-camera movie method to a three-camera show before an audience.

"I'm stage-trained and I like a live audience," said Winkler. "In a one-camera show you can play the nuances, while you go for the laughs with three-camera. I got large when we first went to the audience show, now I'm playing in-between."

FAWN AND FRIENDS

Juli and Christi Roberts will appear on the Oral Roberts special, "Don't Park Here," on KTLA Channel 5 at 9 p.m. Aug. 30. The show, taped at Grandfather Mountain in North Carolina, stars country singer Roy Clark, the World Action Singers, The Cloggers, and hang gliders.

Plan opera on life of Eva Peron

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Evita," an opera based on the life of the Argentine's Eva Peron, will be released by MCA Records in October.

Andrew Lloyd Webber, and Tim Rice, authors of "Jesus Christ Superstar," collaborated on the new work, which was written and recorded in England between 1974 and 1976. "Evita" is described as not political, but a Cinderella story about the rise of a woman to immense power. The wife of dictator Juan Peron, she died of cancer in 1952 at the age of 33.

Benson set at Riverside

Jazz guitarist George Benson and guest star Ronnie Laws and Pressure will present a concert at Raincross Square in Riverside at 7 p.m. next Thursday. Tickets are on sale at Music Town, Pomona.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Benson started playing the ukelele at the age of 8 and later switched to guitar. His models in jazz were Charley Christian, Wes Montgomery, Hank Garland and Grant Green.

In 1965 he formed his own group and has made several hit albums. He won the Playboy All-Star Poll and a Grammy nomination. He signed with Warner Bros. last year and has released his first album, "Breezin'."

Laws was born in Texas into a musical family. His older brother, Hubert, is a jazz and classical flutist; his sister, Eloise, is a singer-actress, and his mother is a piano player. Laws plays the flute and all reed instruments, specializing in the saxophone.

Laws has been a member of Von Ryan's Express and performed with Quincy Jones, Walter Bishop and Hugh Masakela. He was a member of the Los Angeles band, Ujima, before forming his own group, Pressure.

Signing up for cinema

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie castings:

Jack Haley Sr., the original Tin Man of "The Wizard of Oz," will make a brief appearance in "New York, New York," the 1940s musical starring his daughter-in-law, Liza Minnelli.

John Rubinstein, son of pianist Arthur Rubinstein and a star of the "Family," TV mini-series, is playing a musician in Universal's "The Car," about a mystery vehicle that terrorizes a small town.

Alexis Smith will appear as a millionaire horse owner who competes with Walter Matthau in Columbia's "Casey's Shadow."

Ben Gazzara to star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ben Gazzara has been cast in "Richie," a two-hour World Premiere movie for NBC, replacing Rod Steiger, who has undergone open-heart surgery.

Gazzara will portray the father of a 16-year-old boy who becomes a drug addict. Robbie Benson has been cast as the boy.

ROCKING ALONG — Sha Na Na, popular rock group, will perform in the Showcase Theater at Magic Mountain at 8 and 10 p.m. Tuesday through Aug. 29. The group, which stopped the show at the Woodstock Festival, has performed throughout the world and appeared on all the top rock television shows. The Valencia amusement park is open from 9 a.m. to midnight daily.

'Headhunters' work for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They get free tickets to see television stars at work. Before the show starts they're entertained by a warm-up host, and sometimes a band, too. They may get free transportation to and from the event. A few may even leave with expensive gifts.

Who? Virtually anyone; and just for attending the filming or taping of a TV program here in the television production capital.

"One might think it's the easiest thing in the world, that if you're putting on a TV show people are automatically going to come. Not so," says Joseph Di Sante, who is in charge of filling the bleachers for ABC programs.

The task can be so demanding that all three major networks, plus other production facilities around town, have people employed fulltime to handle it. And there is still enough work left over to keep a couple of independents in business.

If that's hard to believe, you have to remember that audiences are needed for every episode of more than 20 situation comedies, a handful of variety shows, countless game shows and talk shows and a never-ending stream of specials. They also are required for many pilot projects that never get on the air.

ABC, CBS and NBC estimate that a combined total of more than 2.5 million persons will sit in studio audiences for network shows this year.

"We look at ourselves as one giant ticket vending machine," says Jay Michelis, NBC's chief audience specialist.

Producers put a high premium on filling the studio auditoriums, which generally range in size from 200 to 500 seats. They say a full house benefits the performers in a variety show or comedy, the celebrities and contestants in a game show, and even the audience itself.

"It's like a party," says Ed Weinberger, a writer-producer involved with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Phyllis" and "Doc."

"If you're at a party and the room is half empty, you say, 'Why am I at this dog of a party.' But if people are pouring out the doors and windows, you say, 'What a great party this is. Look who else is here!'"

If they could charge money for the tickets it wouldn't be such a problem. Then the buyers would have something invested in attending. But federal regulations prohibit their sale and so there is no way of knowing whether the people who pick them up will actually turn out for the show.

Consequently, thousands of tickets have to be distributed to guarantee that a few hundred will be there.

"During the summer months we don't have too many problems because the town is packed with tourists," says Di Sante. The networks are able to unload tickets for just about everything by simply answering write-in requests and handing them out at their headquarters and a few other locations around town.

In nonsummer months they tend to rely more on groups to fill all the empty seats. They contact military installations, churches, fraternities, civic groups, big companies and other places.

Some shows are a lot easier to get audiences for than others, of course. Hit programs such as "The Tonight Show," "The Carol Burnett Show" and the top situation comedies run into difficulties only around holidays and bad weather.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

Barbara's back in the Pomona Valley and in the Hall of Fame!

The Barbara is Barbara Stanton, a personable entertainer headlining her own Barbara Stanton Show, and the Hall of Fame I'm referring to is the restaurant at Ontario Motor Speedway, so named because of trophies, plaques and pictures of motor racing personalities adorning the walls of the place.

You may remember Barbara; she used to sing for the folks at Narod's in Chino on Monday nights.

A folksy-sophisticated lady whose offerings range from country to rock and roll, Barbara Stanton got her show on the road at the Speedway Restaurant a week ago Tuesday night, opening to a sizable crowd of Stanton admirers.

I'll admit to being a Stanton admirer, but conflicts prevented my getting to her opening. But between her engagements at Narod's last winter and her opening at Hall of Fame, I had dropped in on her a couple of times at The Oak Tree Lounge in Covina, her regular Tues-Sat gig for the past year. So I was glad she found her way back into this area, and Thursday I went out to see how the customers at Hall of Fame Restaurant would react to her.

Now Thursday isn't the best night in the week for the restaurant business, particularly for a new restaurant. But I did expect to see more people than I did . . . it's a big place. As I arrived, Barbara was taking a break and I got a chance to visit with her. I noticed a few couples dancing to the music of The Johnny Fortune Trio, Barbara's back up group.

"The food here is great," she said between my questions, admonishing me a little when she found that I hadn't yet eaten there. "This really is a nice place to entertain in. Not enough people know about it yet, I guess. But the food really is good, and reasonable too."

I thought she did my job rather well! But since I haven't eaten there yet, I can't add much about the cuisine, but I can say that I'm impressed with the re-furbishing job the new restaurant management has done with the former Victory Circle Restaurant.

Try Hall of Fame Restaurant this weekend if you haven't been there. Barbara says the food is good and I say that Barbara's show is good.

Last Friday night I went to a restaurant that's relatively new to the area, and found pizza that's not just good . . . it's the best I've ever eaten!

Caesar's Italian Dining has been advertising for a while and I've had several opportunities to stop in and visit with Momma DeMasi. And I had good reason to believe she knows her way around good pasta even before I went there to eat. So I was looking forward to pretty fair Italian fare Friday night.

My first impression as I looked at the menu was that the pizza prices seemed a little expensive. But since Caesar's advertises themselves as "Home of the Square Pizza," I was curious to find out what a square pizza tasted like. So we (there were four of us) included pizza in our order along with spaghetti and cannelloni. Mistake! The pizza alone would have been plenty! I ordered the smallest pizza on the menu and it really would have done nicely for all of us. As we left, though, I noticed we weren't the only ones leaving with a pizza bag.

Try Caesar's Pizza . . . you'll like it. It comes in three sizes, medium, large and family size (which means big, bigger and huge). The restaurant is located in the Stater Bros. shopping center at Mountain and Philadelphia in Ontario. As you'd expect, they do a good take-out business and have plenty of room in the restaurant for eat-in business. (And, apparently, Caesar's does a lot of eat-in, take-out business, too!)

Average pool

The average public swimming pool contains about 250,000 gallons of water.

Ton for pound

Sugarcane farmers in Hawaii say a ton of water is needed to produce a pound of sugar.

Rhodesia's farmers caught in crossfire

CENTENARY EAST, Rhodesia (AP) — Len Phillips, bronzed and blond and dressed in immaculate white shorts and shirt, bounded into the sport club here, draped his Belgian-made F.N. rifle over a rack and quipped: "Anyone for tennis?"

A South African-born farmer perched on a bar stool in the corner chuckled and asked wrly: "Who says there's a war on?"

Then, glancing at the array of shotguns, rifles and revolvers alongside the F.N., he quickly explained: "Those are for shooting guinea fowl."

If the farmers living in the front line of the war between forces of the white minority government and nationalist guerrillas seeking black rule are unnerved they mask it with cynical indifference.

But the pock-marked walls of this club in the far northeast of Rhodesia and the jagged holes in the windows are reminders to the 60 club members and their wives and children of the conflict.

Two weeks ago a band described by the government as Mozambique-based guerrillas raked the clubhouse with machine-gun fire and unleashed a salvo of rockets, one of which destroyed a Land-Rover parked outside.

"I dived right over the bar," recalls burly Jan van Wyk of the dusk attack, "and within minutes the three of us who were in the club were blazing away at them."

A 10-minute gun-battle ensued, he said, until, finally, the guerrillas melted away into the dense bush.

"If it hadn't been for the Land-Rover being hit," says Dick Faasen, pausing between deep draughts of icy lager, "these guys probably wouldn't be here today. The rocket would have come right through the bar."

Faasen's tobacco farm, surrounded by security fencing, is four miles from the Centenary East Sports Club. He lives in the thatch-capped homestead he and his wife, Anne, built 16 years ago while they lived in tents.

In a separate compound, also ringed by wire, live his 60 black laborers and their families.

During the evenings when Faasen sits in his lounge watching television with a shotgun and an alarm system linking a military base at his side, the blacks are confined to their quarters.

"There's a dusk to dawn curfew and anyone who is spotted out can be shot," he says simply. "We can't even trust our own employes anymore."

Guerrillas are suspected to have used the Faasen compounds on occasions to sleep and eat, and Faasen has fired two workers thought to have helped the rebels.

The cook at the clubhouse is under arrest and is still being questioned for his alleged role in guiding the guerrillas to the ambush point.

"They're caught between two forces," an intelligence officer at the Joint Operations command post in the garrison town of Mount Darwin said in an interview.

"On the one hand they can be jailed for 20 years or so if they help the Terrs (the whites' name for terrorists). On the other, they risk being shot or badly beaten by the Terrs if they refuse to give them this help."

The intelligence man points at a map of northeastern Rhodesia on the wall of his makeshift office.

It covers the area code-named "Operation Hurricane" where black guerrillas first infiltrated at the start of the war almost four years ago.

"We've cleared them out of one tribal area altogether," he says, "and we expect greater success in the coming months. The latest hatches to come across from Mozambique (Rhodesia's eastern neighbor) are poorly trained and are being zapped pretty hard."

About half of the 1,300 guerrillas reported to be in Rhodesia operate in the northeast. Only 80 are thought to have been in this sector at Christmas, before the 1976 offensive.

The government reports its troops have killed 1,068 guerrillas — almost half this year alone — for the loss of 127 men.

But even though the 2,000 white farmers in "Hurricane" don't show it, recent attacks by the rebels have forced them to be more careful.

"We're a bit more wary, I suppose," says Faasen as he peers out of his lounge window to the surrounding bush that is bathed in arc lamps. "One doesn't sleep very well. We're always half expecting the sound of shots that will signal the beginning of an attack."

Faasen, like most farmers here, has rocket flares ready to fire in his garden alongside a siren — both of which can be set off from an elaborate console in his bedroom.

His farm has been attacked once and his wife Anne was wounded in the arm.

"That shook us a bit," he says. "We hadn't bothered with security measures then, but we have everything now."

Every morning after breakfast Faasen drives along the dusty winding track to the main road. A land mine, planted there by guerrillas, once destroyed a military truck and the buckled remains are still on the farm.

"No one is scared of facing the Terrs and having it out with them," he says. "But you can't fight a land mine. They do worry us a bit and we keep a close watch out for disturbed earth every time I use this track."

Preventing those dangling wires

By Ink Dipper

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ink Dipper (KYZ-3916) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times Journal.)

The theft of CB radios has reached crisis proportions. If you haven't already had your CB stolen, then it is only a matter of time before you return to your four-wheeler to find a few ripped wires where the once proud instrument rode.

That is, unless you take some very basic precautions. Most people don't. So for the thief who wants, or needs, to make a quick buck ripping off your CB is easy.

Here are 10 simple steps that will greatly reduce the chances of your CB being taken.

1. Use common sense.
2. Always park in a well-lighted area.
3. Never leave car without locking it.
4. Remove lock bolt covers on car doors.
5. Have CB mounted so it can be removed when away from car.
6. Take it with you or put in trunk.
7. Get a metal engraving pen from local hardware store and etch Social Security number on the CB chassis.
8. Record serial number of CB and keep it in a safe place.
9. Purchase auto burglar alarm.
10. Encourage local police department to initiate a program to mark all CBs with metal engraving pens.

With the use of these precautions most CB thieves can be thwarted. But receently in Cincinnati the police caught up with an accomplished CB thief.

In an interview, the thief — who was only identified as "John" — explained how he had made more than $20,000 in two months stealing CBs and other things.

"By the time I walked up to a car and put my hand on the door handle, I would have a coat hanger in the window and the door unlocked," he said.

"Anybody who saw me open a car that fast thought I had a key," he explained.

He could even enter cars that were equipped with burglar alarms.

He said stealing CBs enabled him to build up a sizable bank account, pay the rent, take friends out to dinner "and blow about $300 a night" at a local race track. John found hotels and motels very profitable because large numbers of salesmen who stay there leave their CBs and other wares in their cars. Parking lots at theaters were lucrative, too, because he could time the owner's return to their cars with the ending of each showing of the movie.

Interestingly enough, he frequently used his CB to sell the CBs he had just stolen. He would go out on an interstate and cruise, ratchet-jawing with other CBers. When he found a likely prospect, he would arrange to meet them at the nearest restaurant or truck stop. He usually sold CB units for $30 to $40 below retail price.

A favorite story John tells is the time he ripped off another thief.

"I was just sitting in my car, watching a parking lot, when I saw this guy taking a CB unit out of a car. I waited until he had gotten it out, and then I went over and told him it was my car. He just looked at me and handed me the radio and took off," John said.

Luckily most thieves are not like John. They have not perfected the art.

Adventure, elegance in freighter travel

By J.M. HALL
(First of two articles)

The mystery of the sea and the luxury of private quarters can be yours for an ordinary fee on a freighter to anywhere.

Dine in elegance on fine Scandanavian cuisine. Share an after-dinner drink with the captain of the ship who hosts your table. Hear him talk of modern sea travel and his native Norway. Watch the sea from the captain's bridge or tour the engine room, a massive power plant as clean as a hospital emergency room.

The ship is yours. Not a rusty, creaking old junk steamer. These freighters haul expensive cargo and use the most modern equipment. A navigation computer, for example, receives satellite radio weather information and prints out copies of weather maps charting storms and bad water.

When you are in business to deliver millions of dollars of freight in perfect condition, passenger comfort and safety are built in.

The one-way fare on a top of the line freighter from New York to the first European port of call, often Antwerp in Belgium, averages about $400. That includes everything except cigarettes and liquor from the bar. What it amounts to is 9 days of luxury travel in a hotel crossing the Atlantic.

Round trip fares and voyages leaving the Gulf or Great Lakes are often cheaper. For example, the one-way fare from New Orleans to Antwerp is $320 for a 13-15 day journey.

Low-cost travel on freighters is possible for two reasons. Freight is the reason the ship is sailing so freight pays most of your costs. And passenger cabins were originally built on freighters for ship line owners and their friends. But business being business, ship owners soon learned they could rent those cabins when they weren't traveling by sea.

The demand for freighter passage is great and shipping companies suggest you begin making arrangements at least six months before sailing.

Accommodations on a good freighter are like those in a hotel suite. Each two-passenger cabin is both bedroom and living room. They usually have beds, a couch, a desk, reading chairs, closets and a full bath. Each day one of two stewardesses makes your beds and cleans your cabin.

The passenger cabins on most freighters are outside berths above deck, and several look out over the bow of the ship.

In open sea, the freighter's cranes are cabled up. The decks are spotlessly clean. In a calm sea it is an interesting stroll to the front of the ship where a passenger can spend hours watching through the anchor holes as the bow parts the sea like a giant sea turtle.

And giants they are. The Norwegian Oyster Catcher, for example, draws 29 feet of water when it is fully loaded. The first officer said it takes 50 tons to lower the ship in the water one inch.

Most freighters allow each passenger 30 cubic feet of baggage which can be stored in your cabin or the hold. That is a stack of about seven footlockers. Excess baggage is charged for $1.50 a cubic foot.

Freighters will also transport your car. Depending on its size, the rate is about $500 eastbound and $300 westbound.

Constellation Maritime. Mystic Steamship Corporation. Westwind Africa. Jugolinija. Orient Overseas. American President. Zim Israel. Djarkarta Lloyd. Freighter lines to and from every major port in the world.

If the country has an ocean port, you can get there by freighter.

Freighter Travel News (Freighter Travel Club of America, Box 504, Newport, Ore. 97365) provides specific information including readers' comments on freighters. A new book by Bradford Angier, "The Freighter Travel Manual," provides general information for beginning travelers.

Ford's Freighter Travel Guide (P.O. Box 505, Woodland Hills, Calif. 91364) provides specific information on departures, destinations and fares as well as addresses of shipping companies and general information on freighter travel.

Your library should have the Angier book and current copies of Ford's guides.

For those who want to get away from it all, there is no place like a freighter. As one traveler put it: "There is a time at sea when you forget where you're from and it doesn't do any good to worry about where you are going. That time is pure relaxation."

Your freighter can serve as your hotel while you are awaiting departure. When we boarded in New York a day early our fare included meals and accommodations while we waited for the ship to load.

Freighter lines also offer cruise fares which enable passengers to use the ship as their hotel during the entire round trip voyage. Cruise fares often include the same accommodations in hotels for a three-day land tour during the ship's stay in home port.

The lore of a freighter is fascinating stuff. Many hours can be spent watching the crew operate the ship's cranes as they fill the hold. And the dock workers in every port are different. In New York the language they spoke, their loading and working gestures and their noontime activities can be a completely new experience even for native New Yorkers.

The contrast of the measured work of union men to that of dock workers in Belgium who are paid on commission is amazing. The Flemish did the work in less than half the time it took union workers in Brooklyn, and much of it was done with machines.

In Tangier almost everything was done by hand. Crates were loaded in nets and the dock workers in their Moroccan robes spoke and gestured wildly as they swung out over the ship clinging to the nets.

A raucous requiem

Bitter end for Reagan devotees

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The end was a bitter end for Ronald Reagan's most zealous acolytes.

"Do any states want to change their votes?" the convention chairman asked after West Virginia's vote put President Ford over the top.

"No! No way! Hell no!" chorused angry alternate delegates in the California seats. Others responded with curses. They shook their fists in the air and made thumbs-down gestures and, gradually, a few at a time, got up and left.

Nearly all the alternate delegates were gone when the closing gavel fell.

During that critical third night of the convention they had blown their plastic trumpets the loudest and tossed the most confetti and stomped and whistled and cheered, but in the end it was no more than a raucous requiem.

Some said their demonstration, one of the longest in Republican party history, was designed to delay the President's inevitable nomination until after TV prime time in the East.

But in the California alternate section overlooking the floor, and in the adjacent Colorado and Arizona sections it seemed genuine, all right, and if for any secret purpose merely that of prolonging the dream.

A handful of the 167 alternate California delegates took the loss resignedly and with good humor.

"Well, dammit, you can't do much better than that," said alternate, Bob Lindsay of San Jose. "So let's go out and beat Jimmy Carter."

"Nuts," a voice replied.

"Well, we don't want him to win, do we?"

Silence.

Indeed, the silence in that noisiest of convention hall sections was almost funereal when the tally began.

They shoved their horns and posters under the seats, put down their plastic cups, took out their pocket calculators and tally sheets and hoped the figures would add up to a miracle.

"Get on with it," one called out during an overlong state puff by a delegation chairman. As the tally progressed, tension deepened.

The poll of the Virginia delegation gave the Californians time to compare figures, check additions, and as they did, heads nodded dourly, voices spoke softly, like people who gather outside a hospital after some terrible calamity.

"It looks like West Virginia or Wisconsin will do it to us," said William Saraccino of Los Angeles, getting up to leave. John Feliz, also of Los Angeles, rose with him.

"Will you support the ticket?" Saraccino was asked.

"Never," he replied.

"Make that two of us," Feliz said.

"I'll say 85 per cent of the California delegation will refuse to work for Ford," said Saraccino. Some might vote for him, but they won't work for him. I won't do either."

"I won't say I'll work for Ford as hard as I would for Reagan," said Dorothy Kranhold of San Bernardino, "but I won't vote for Carter."

None of the alternate delegates could know that within hours their hero would pledge his support to President Ford. For some, that would make the difference. Charles Thomas, of Los Angeles, was one.

"Ronald Reagan is more astute than I am about politics," Thomas said. "If he says to support the ticket I'll support it. If he doesn't, I won't."

At 12:26 a.m., the moment of defeat for Ronald Reagan, the end of the long campaign for his workers, an alternate delegate in a red dress dissolved in tears at the announcement of the West Virginia vote and buried her head in the shoulder next to her.

Another Californian held her sign aloft, held it still, not wildly waving as before but like a silent protester. It said: "Pick Ford — Nixon did."

Can West lead Lakers to title?

'MR. CLUTCH' RETURNS

Jerry West, who led the Lakers to an NBA title in 1972 as a player, talks with reporters at press conference Thursday. West succeeds Bill Sharman as Lakers' coach.

Lakers get coach after a long wait

LOS ANGELES — Jack Kent Cooke kept everyone guessing right up to the end.

The Lakers' owner finally ended speculation about the head coaching job when Jerry West was introduced Thursday as Bill Sharman's successor.

Cooke apparently didn't tell anyone until shortly before the 10 a.m. press conference at the Forum. Chick Hearn, a Cooke favorite and Laker vice president said he was as surprised as anyone.

"I swear I'm as shocked as you are," Hearn was overheard telling a TV type. "I just KNEW it had to be (Jerry) Tarkanian."

Tarkanian, coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, was the most publicized of the three names prominently mentioned. (Denny Crum of Louisville was the third.)

Some sources close to the Laker hierarchy had claimed that Tarkanian signed a contract several weeks ago.

Cooke flew over to Las Vegas as late as Tuesday of this week. Whether "Tark" changed his mind or simply decided against casting his lot with the pros is not known.

Whatever went on, it is apparent that JKC was negotiating with at least two prospects, West and Tarkanian, for some time.

"Contrary to what you may have read, I've been negotiating with Mr. Cooke for five weeks," West told those at the press conference.

JKC was missing

One of the oddest things about Thursday's assemblage was that Cooke himself was absent. Usually the Lakers owner is very much in evidence at any press conference concerning any of his properties.

Unlike the previous two at which super stars Kareem Abdul Jabbar (Lakers) and Marcel Dionne (Kings) were unveiled, this one was held in the Forum pressroom. The other two had been Cooke spectaculars held on the floor of the arena itself.

This time there was no drum roll and no stagy lowering of the house lights with the subject stepping into a spotlight.

It just might have been that Jerry West wouldn't go for a big production.

West made it clear that, although he would consult others, he will do things his way as Laker coach.

And so the Jerry West era, phase II, has begun. It also is the Bill Sharman era, phase II.

Sharman was there too seated in one of four chairs flanking West. Hearn sat next to him. General manager Pete Newell occupied one of the two on the other side.

At the same time West was introduced as the new coach, Sharman's executive job was specifically defined. The former head coach will be assistant general manager.

It had to be tough on Sharman who had wanted to return as head coach. He sat there trying to look happy and enthused. But it didn't quite come off.

At the back of the room stood an even more wistful onlooker. Assistant coach Larry Cregar, a Sharman man, is out of a job along with John Barnhill.

Just one assistant

West will have only one assistant coach and will pick one of his own choosing. It'll be one of three he already has in mind. And he has made it his first priority.

All three are currently employed, two in pro basketball and the other in college basketball. That could be Gary Colson of Pepperdine if he is interested.

West described all three as innovators and observed that "basketball has changed." He also said that he felt the Lakers' top needs are a big forward and a big guard.

Interestingly enough, he also feels that there is a definite place and need for little (5-9) Mack Calvin. "One of the things the Lakers lacked last year was leadership," Jerry remarked, and Mack Calvin fills that bill."

Last year there were times when the Lakers obviously weren't putting out much effort. If West is as strong a disciplinarian as he claims there will be little of that.

"I will not tolerate a lack of effort," he said firmly. I'm going to be completely fair. But I want them to give me 100 percent in practice and in the game."

Jerry also made it plain that he will avoid a certain type of player in trades. "One thing I do not want is a player with a reputation as a troublemaker," he snapped.

"We're gonna get some players. We're gonna work hard and we're going to have a winning season."

Yay West!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke ended his feud with Jerry West, hired the all-star basketball player to coach his Los Angeles Lakers and now undoubtedly will demand a championship team.

West had filed a $6-million suit against Cooke claiming the owner hadn't lived up to his last playing contract two years ago.

Cooke had filed a $2-million countersuit claiming West hadn't lived up to what was expected from him, but in an amicable news conference, the 39-year-old former star guard said, "My differences with Mr. Cooke are settled. I'm extremely pleased with the terms of the contract."

Those terms were not divulged but reports were that Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas had been offered a five-year, $350,000 contract to coach the Lakers. West's pact couldn't be less.

Called "Mr. Clutch" and "Zeke from Cabin Creek" in reference to his West Virginia background, West joined the Lakers in 1960 when they first moved from Minneapolis to Los Angeles. On 13 occasions, he was the National basketball Association's all-star guard.

Admitting he'll be under pressure, West said, "I haven't seen the player yet who didn't think he's smarter than the coach."

Cooke worried over his coaching selection for six months after the end of the NBA season, the second in a row in which the Lakers failed to reach the playoffs. Then he announced that Bill Sharman would have a front office job. That turns out to be assistant general manager.

West must coach Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the 7-foot-2 All-NBA center who enters his second year with the Lakers.

"I don't plan to change his style of play," the new coach declared. "We won't have men crowding into an area so he will have more movement. We'll stress defense and I think we'll be stronger in the defensive game."

West said he wants a stronger defensive team and used as an illustration, "Playing the Chicago Bulls was like going to the dentist every day. They played together as a unit and made things tough all the time.

The Lakers open their official practices on Sept. 23 and West says, "There's a lot to be done. All sports are built on the theory of a strong defense and that's what we'll do."

West said the acquisition of former University of Southern California star Mack Calvin will be a big plus for the Lakers. Calvin comes to the NBA from the ABA.

"He will provide leadership which we need," said West, who provided such leadership as a Lakers player.

Both Sharman and Pete Newell, the Lakers' general manager, said West would be successful "because he has the necessary enthusiasm."

And the coach himself said, "I wanted this job very badly. After all, I haven't done anything for two years. I'm happy to be back in basketball."

On Garvey, Cey home runs

Dodgers stun Mets

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers are at their best in rallying from behind to win one-run games.

But few comebacks this season matched Thursday night's dramatic show when the Dodgers slugged back-to-back home runs in the ninth inning to pull out an incredible 6-5 victory over the New York Mets.

After Ted Sizemore and Bill Buckner opened the ninth with consecutive singles off of Mets' relief ace Skip Lockwood, Steve Garvey tied it by smashing a 3-2 pitch into the Dodger bullpen.

Ron Cey followed by belting Bob Apodaca's 1-2 pitch into the left field pavilion to win it.

The dramatic homers gives the Dodgers a 29-17 record in one-run decisions — 19-7 at home — and was their 35th comeback victory of the campaign.

Yet L.A. remains 11 games back of the Reds in the National League West standings.

"This was my happiest moment of the year," an excited Garvey said. "This shows what this team is made of. We've got a good record in one-run games and we've been able to come from behind. We still got some time left to catch the Reds."

"Maybe we're getting back to where we should be," added Cey, who hit his 20th homer of the season. "This is a great win, coming back from three runs down."

Thursday's game changed suddenly in the final two innings as Dodger starter Burt Hooton entered the eighth frame with an 1-0 lead.

But the Mets turned it around in the eighth by scoring four runs and adding what looked like an insurance tally in the ninth when the Dodger bullpen couldn't come through.

Hooton, who had a pain in his neck from throwing a pitch in the seventh, left after the Mets tied it on pinch-hitter Mike Vail's single and Mike Phillips' two-out triple.

Reliever Stan Wall walked John Milner and Elias Sosa was tagged by a double off of Joe Torre's bat and a single by Jerry Grote to complete the big inning.

New York's run in the ninth off of winner Charlie Hough (11-5) was unearned because of a throwing error by shortstop Bill Russell.

Mets' southpaw Mickey Lolich, who hasn't been blessed with many runs, held the Dodgers on two hits in his seven innings of work but both hits came in the fourth inning when Davey Lopes and Buckner singled to account for a run.

Still Lolich figured to be a winner after the Mets rallied in the eighth for a 4-1 lead.

Lockwood, who ranks second in the N.L. in saves with 14, allowed an unearned tally in the eighth when second baseman Phillips made an error on Lee Lacy's grounder. Pinch-hitter Leron Lee's single scored Lacy after Ellie Rodriguez drew a walk.

Of course, Lockwood couldn't get anybody out in the ninth after the Mets took a 5-2 lead.

The Dodgers swept the three-game series from the Mets and have won four consecutive one-run decisions dating back to Sunday's victory in Chicago.

DODGER DATA — The Dodgers just love the East. They are 22-8 against the East at home and 40-20 overall. Their next 12 games are against their Eastern buddies. But L.A. closes the season in September against the West and the record against the teams in their own division is only 26-34.

The Pirates, also known as the Pittsburgh Lumber Company, come in tonight for a three-game weekend series. Pitching match-ups are: tonight — Doug Rau (10-10) vs. Bruce Kison (9-7), Saturday night — Don Sutton (14-9) vs. Jerry Reuss and Sunday afternoon — Rick Rhoden (11-1) vs. Larry Demery (6-4).

Saturday's game will begin an hour later at 8 p.m. because of the preliminary Hollywood Stars contest featuring Pat Boone, Cary Grant, Jack Lemmon, Tony Orlando, Jimmie Walker and Wes Parker.

Thursday's crowd of 21,407 puts the Dodgers only 10,480 short of the magic two million mark for home attendance. It will be Los Angeles' 12th season with more than two million at the gate.

Monge stifles Tiger batters

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit substitutes sizzled against Paul Hartzell, but fizzled against Sid Monge.

Monge's great relief pitching came too late to save the Angels as the Tigers nipped California 4-3 Thursday night to equal their 1975 victory total of 57 wins this season.

Detroit was 57-102, the second worst record in the team's history last year. They were last in the American League East. Now, the fourth-place Tigers are 57-61 with hopes of finishing second.

"I haven't even given that a thought," Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said of Detroit's victory total. "Last year is in the past."

Tiger starter Ray Bare, 5-6, was staked to a 4-0 lead Thursday, with seldom used Chuck Scrivener, Dan Meyer and Ben Oglivie each driving in a run, along with Ron LeFlore. That lead was 4-3 in the sixth inning when Jim Crawford came in to retire 10 of 11 batters for his second save.

Monge retired all 14 Tigers he faced after replacing rookie starter Hartzell with one out in the fourth. He fanned the first four Tigers and five of the first six. Nobody hit the ball out of the infield.

"Yeh, he did some job," Houk said.

Angels Manager Norm Sherry was a little more emphatic: "He hadn't pitched in 11 days. He did a hell of a job!"

Monge, a former Alta Loma High pitcher, had been a reliever, then a starter and went back in the bullpen because of erratic pitching.

Bare yielded successive homers to Bob Jones and Mario Guerrero with one out in the fifth. Guerrero's was the first of his four-year major league career.

A walk to Jerry Remy, badhop single by Bruce Bochte and single by Dan Briggs gave the Angels a run in the sixth before Crawford came in to strike out pinch hitter Lee Stanton to thwart further damage.

An infield single by Jason Thompson and Scrivener's two-out double off Hartzell gave the Tigers a run in the second.

Detroit scored twice in the third. LeFlore opened with a single, stole second and came home on Meyer's double. Oglivie singled in Meyer.

LeFlore's RBI single in the fourth came after Bill Freehan was hit by a pitch and Pedro Garcia walked.

Meyer and Oglivie started in the outfield, while Scrivener started at short in place of Tom Veryzer, who was put on the 15-day disabled list with a strained left ankle suffered during a slide Wednesday. He may be out the rest of the season.

Mark Wagner has been called up from Evansville to replace him.

Herron only had vitamins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mack Herron, the former National Football League running back who had been arrested and booked for investigation of possessing hashish, is free on bail today, sheriff's deputies said.

Herron, through his attorney Tom Brown, posted $5,000 bond Thursday and was released, deputies said.

The 5-foot-5 Herron was originally booked for investigation of possession of cocaine valued at $24,000. But laboratory tests later showed that the substance was ordinary vitamin C.

He was later rebooked for investigation of possession of hashish. A companion, 26-year-old Mark Law, remained in custody for investigation of possessing marijuana, authorities said.

Rams to face toughest test

OAKLAND (AP) — Two defending division champions, both with 3-0 exhibition records, bump helmets here Saturday night when the Oakland Raiders host the Los Angeles Rams in a National Football League preseason game.

The Raiders dumped the Dallas Cowboys, St. Louis Cardinals and New York Jets, while Los Angeles defeated Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Dallas and Seattle Seahawks.

The game will be telecast nationally (NBC) at 6 p.m., PDT.

Leading the Rams' offense is quarterback James Harris, who completed 55.1 per cent of his passes last year for 2,148 yards and 14 touchdowns. Oakland ace Ken Stabler heads the Raider offense.

With the preseason half gone, both teams are set to play veterans, making the game a preview of what to expect in regular season play.

One Raider hoping to get some playing time is veteran tight end Ted Kwalick, who came to Oakland last year and has yet to play a down in preseason because of a hamstring injury.

"This time off has definitely hurt me because I haven't been able to do all the things you have to accomplish in training camp," Kwalick said. "I haven't thought that much about the competitive angle."

But Kwalick is definitely in competition for the job, with Dave Casper and Warren Bankston. "Who starts is just trivia," Kwalick says in shrugging off the struggle for the number one spot. "Playing is the big thing."

Expected to start in the backfield for Oakland Coach John Madden, whose team is defending their American Football Conference Western Division title, are Mark van Eeghen, averaging 8.8 yards on 19 carries, and Clarence Davis, averaging 4.3 yards on 17 carries.

Fred Biletnikoff and Cliff Branch should open at wide receiver, and the Raiders' leading scorer, Fred Steinfort, who has 18 points for the three games, will do the place-kicking while veteran George Blanda again sits it out waiting for the axe to fall.

The Los Angeles defense, which allowed only 135 points in 14 games last year, features Jack Youngblood, Fred Dryer, Merlin Olsen and Larry Brooks, with Rick Kay, Jack Reynolds and Isiah Robertson for linebackers and Al Clark, Monte Jackson, Dave Elmendorf and Bill Simpson in the back.

Bruins are still gaining ground

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State gave UCLA's 1975 football team a 9-2-1 record and a ranking as the fifth best team in the United States but the Bruins would rather not be put on the spot in 1976.

Quarterback John Sciarra and two of his top offensive linemen, Randy Cross and Phil McKinnely, and defensive ace Cliff Frazier have graduated and Coach Dick Vermeil has left for the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles. But the man who'll take over for Sciarra says UCLA didn't make it to the forefront of college football in one year.

"We're still just gaining ground," said articulate Jeff Dankworth. "We have a lot of young people who got their first taste of what it's like to be in a Rose Bowl game. Heck, we're only picked to be third in our own conference."

Yet the Pacific-8's defending champion has a lot of talent back from 1975 including its top ground gainer, Wendell Tyler, its best tight ends, Ricky Walker and Don Pederson, and the bulk of a defense which was maligned at the start of last year but came on to play exceptionally well.

"We'll run the Veer again," said Dankworth, but he added there was a slight change: "there will be a difference in the way the quarterback handles the ball.

"Under Pepper Rodgers, the quarterback kept the ball until he was just about to get destroyed and then he flipped it off to one of his backs. This year I'm going to get rid of it a little faster — which is to give credit to our great backs."

Tyler, a 5-foot-10, 188-pounder, gained 1,388 yards last year despite playing seven games with a severely sprained left wrist which was heavily wrapped in tape. "Nobody knew the agony I was in," he said. "It'll be more fun without worrying about the wrist this year."

Tyler has gained 2,178 yards in two seasons and needs just 317 more to break the school career rushing record set by Kermit Johnson between 1971 and 1973.

New Coach Terry Donahue was UCLA's offensive line coach last year, and he turned the front five into a swift, potent group. This year he has a massive rebuilding job to do in that same area.

On defense, however, UCLA appears to have the makings of a brick wall.

Returning are safeties Oscar Edwards and Pat Schmidt, tackles Manu Tuiasosopo and Pete Pele — both of Samoan descent — and linebackers Raymond Burks and Jerry Robinson. All were starters last year. All are very fast.

Up the middle the Bruins appears strong, too. Mitch Kahn is a veteran center who was second team All-West Coast last year. Alongside Tyler is Theotis Brown at the other halfback spot, with fleet Wally Henry back at the spot from which he caught 17 passes in the run-oriented offense last year.

If Donahue can manufacture an offensive line, UCLA could challenge Southern California and California for the Pac-8 title.

Sports briefs

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — The 1976 Connie Mack World Series opens tonight when Nashville, Tenn., battles Joliet, Ill., and Cincinnati, Ohio, battles defending champ Long Beach, Calif.

Nashville takes a 68-14 record againt Joliet, 35-14 on the year. Long Beach is 24-4 this year while Cincinatti carries a 58-6 record into tonight's fray.

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Hawaii beat Arizona by one point to win the Junior America Cup Golf Tournament at the Ogden Country Club for golfers 17 and younger.

Hawaii's 755 was the lowest three-round total of the 15 teams in the tournament. Arizona finished with 756 and Southern California with 760.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The National Hockey League Pittsburgh Penguins announced Thursday that veteran baseball broadcaster Bob Prince will join the club organization.

Penguin Chairman Albert A. Savill said Prince will serve as administrative assistant to President Wren Blair and will be in charge of community relations.

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Hung Fu-Lin pitched a one-hitter Thursday as Taiwan eliminated New Castle, Del., 5-2, from the Senior Little League baseball tournament.

New Castle's only hit was a two-run homer by Larry Lenoir.

In Thursday's second game, Richmond, Va., eliminated Canada 11-5. Shortstop Mark Meleski smashed his second homer of the tourney, a solo shot, to lead Richmond.

In the final game Thursday, Hawaii beat Grand Rapids, Mich., 2-1, as Ronald Higashi struck out 12 and walked four.

Hawaii's victory overshadowed the two-hit pitching by Grand Rapids' Doug Gadbois, who struck out 15.

Richmond meets Taiwan Friday, with the winner of that game facing Grand Rapids Friday night.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A move by major football universities to establish a super division has been rejected by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The effort to establish the new division was made by members of seven major football conferences.

Although the plan was rejected, it was agreed there would be continuing discussion and that the question could be raised again at the NCAA's next meeting Oct. 11-13 in New Orleans. However, the plan would not then bear the recommendation of the NCAA Council.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lele Forood of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., her confidence increasing as the match progressed, upset top-seeded Bunny Bruning of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, to advance to the semfinals of the U.S. Tennis Association's 21-and-under Championships Thursday at the Columbia University Tennis Center.

TORONTO — Two major upsets took place in the $155,000 Canadian Open tennis tournment. Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain was defeated by Bob Hewitt of South Africa 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 while in women's action top-seeded Sue Barker of Britain was eliminated by sixth-seeded Cynthia Doerner of Australia 6-3, 6-2.

BUCHAREST — Nadia Comaneci, the 15-year-old gymnast, received one of Romania's highest honors-the title of 'Hero of Socialist Labor' and the golden "Sickle and Hammer" medal for her performance in the recent Summer Olympic Games.

GLENEAGLES, Scotland — A talented young Spanish team crushed an American squad, consisting of Johnny Miller, Mark Hayes, Lou Graham and Dave Hill, 4-0 at the start of the eight-team Double Diamond match play classic.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — Frattello Ed, $3.60, scored a two-length victory over Heidee's Pal in the frist running of the $38,425 Empire State Stakes for New York-bred-two-year olds at Saratoga.

Braves' strategy fails

By Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves pulled one out of left field against the Cincinnati Reds.

"I've seen the Willie McCovey shift and the Henry Aaron shift, but never bringing an outfielder in to play the infield," said Mike Lum, shaking his head.

The "Mike Lum Shift" installed by Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol Thursday night brought left fielder Tom Paciorek in to play the infield, giving the Braves three fielders on the right side.

Lum, who doesn't consider himself a pull hitter, was baffled by the move—but obviously not shaken by it. He smashed a single through the dramatic overshift into right field to score the winning run in the Reds' 3-2, 11-inning victory.

"That's a Gene Mauch play all the way, no ifs, ands or buts," noted Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

He added: "If you're going to pull in outfielders, though, you just as well should bring them all in. But you know what it really is in that situation? You pray. That's the best play—you pray. At that point, it is how do I want my poison."

The Reds had men on second and third at the time with Lum in a pinch-hitter's role and the dangerous Pete Rose on deck.

"I pitched to Lum," pointed out Bristol, "because Rose with 2,700 lifetime hits is not going to beat me."

In other National League games, Pittsburgh blanked San Francisco 1-0; Philadelphia beat Houston 7-1 and Los Angeles nipped the New York Mets 6-5.

Tony Perez ignited the winning rally for Cincinnati with a single and went to third when former Red shortstop Darrell Chaney threw wildly to second on a grounder.

Bristol then made his move. With Perez at third and Dave Concepcion at second and a count of 1-1, Lum drilled a liner just out of reach of first baseman Willie Montanez' glove.

The hit was especially sweet for Lum, an ex-Brave who had asked to be traded last year. The Braves dealt him to Cincinnati for Chaney in the off-season.

"Let's face it, I wasn't hitting at all in Atlanta," said Lum. "It was one of my worst seasons last year."

Pedro Borbon, the third Reds' pitcher, boosted his record to 3-2 while Adrian Devine absorbed the defeat, dropping his record to 2-4.

Pirates 1, Giants 0

John Candelaria scattered nine hits and scored the game's only run as Pittsburgh beat San Francisco. The shutout was the third of the season for Candelaria, 12-4, with two coming against the Giants. He hurled a two-hit victory at Candlestick Park on April 25.

The game's only run was scored in the fifth inning off Jim Barr, 10-10. Manny Sanguillen walked and was forced at second on Candelaria's sacrifice attempt. With two out, Omar Moreno sent Candelaria to second with a single and Richie Zisk followed with a runscoring base hit to center.

Phillies 7, Astros 1

Steve Carlton pitched a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory and Mike Schmidt belted his 32nd home run as Philadelphia beat Houston. Carlton, 15-4, struck out six and walked two in earning his 10th triumph in his last 11 decisions.

The Phillies rattled Houston starter Joaquin Andujar and relievers Bo McLaughlin and Joe Sambito for 17 hits, including four hits for Jay Johnstone that boosted the outfielder's average to a league-leading .344. He had his fourth home run, 30th double and two singles.

'Soupy' Campbell pitches split peas

By Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles suffered another dose of indigestion Thursday after sampling the peas served up by Bill "Soupy" Campbell, a Pomona product from Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College.

"When Campbell's throwing like he was for those couple of innings, he's not throwing peas, he's throwing split peas," Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch said after the bulllpen ace preserved the Twins' 5-4 victory over the Orioles.

Campbell entered the game with two on and two out in the seventh inning. He retired Tony Muser on a grounder and then set down the final six batters, striking out three and earning his 15th save to go with 12 relief wins, five short of the American League record.

The Twins came from behind twice, wiping out a 2-0 deficit in the fifth and then getting three in the bottom of the sixth after the Orioles scored twice in the top half. Although Dave Pagan was charged with the loss, Tippy Martinez walked Lyman Bostock with the bases loaded to force in the winning run and drop the Orioles 11 games behind the idle Yankees in the AL East.

At the first sign of trouble in the seventh, Mauch wig-wagged for Campbell.

"There's no way I'm going to let this one get by us," he said, even though starter Bill Singer insisted he was still strong. "We've just got so far behind too many times recently, and when we've got a chance I'm not going to let it slip by."

"I kept telling him I felt good," Singer said, "but it didn't do any good and I guess it worked out."

"I really had good stuff and all of my pitches worked super," said Campbell, who has pitched 126 innings in 57 appearances. "It's not too bad pitching every day if you don't go four or five innings at a time."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said he was disappointed the Orioles couldn't do better against Minnesota's pitching as the teams split the four-game series.

Brewers 6, Royals 4

Gorman Thomas belted a three-run homer in the second inning and triples by Von Joshua and George Scott keyed Milwaukee's two-run fifth. Joshua tripled leading off the fifth and scored on a sacrifice fly by Robin Yount as the Brewers broke a 3-3 tie against Dennis Leonard. Scott followed with a triple and scored on second baseman Frank White's wild relay to third.

Indians 7, Rangers 5

Boog Powell pounded a pair of two-run homers off his favorite pitching staff. Powell has hit only six home runs this year and four have come against the Rangers, who have lost six games in a row. Powell also delivered a run-scoring single in the ninth inning for his fifth RBI.

White Sox 4, Red Sox 2

Jack Brohamer drove in runs with a single and sacrifice fly and Ken Brett scattered eight hits for his first win in more than three weeks. Loser Rick Wise failed in his fifth consecutive try for his 10th win. Brohamer's single in the second inning drove in Jerry Hairston, who walked and was sacrificed to second. Brohamer's sacrifice fly in the fourth followed a leadoff walk to Brian Downing, a single by Hairston and another sacrifice.

Hartford Open offers nostalgia

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Pro golf's nostalgia buffs were in their glory.

There was Sam Snead, that 64-year-old relic from the days of the hickory shafts, one-putting nine times from his sidesaddle stance and happily chortling: "If I could keep this up, they might be able to coax me back to the tour."

Snead, with his trademark, a brightly-banded Panama straw hat firmly in place, converted his best putting round in years into a 68. That was just three strokes off the pace of Rik Massengale, whose six-underpar 65 was all but overshadowed by the heroics of another generation of golfing greats Thursday in the first round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

There was Arnold Palmer, 46, a winner of this tournament 20 years ago, holing out his approach shot for an eagle two on the first hole and then bringing home a 68.

"I hit the wedge just the way I wanted to," Palmer solemnly announced of the 70-yard shot that ripped a joyous roar of appreciation from his huge gallery on the first hole.

There was Art Wall, 52, a winner here a decade ago, moving into a tie for second with a 67 despite a bogey on the final hole. "I shot 63 in the last round last year with a bogey on that hole," Wall recalled. "I just don't play it very well. Maybe I'm just choking. Maybe I'm just a bad player," said the soft-spoken man who won the Masters and Player of the Year honors in 1959.

And there was Billy Casper, 45, once one of the game's premier putters, who used a refound touch for a 67 that included two putts of 35-40 feet in length and three more from about 15 feet.

"It's been a long time since I had a round like this," said Billy, who won the first of his four Hartford titles 13 years ago.

That quartet of challengers chasing Massengale, a 29-year-old Texan who has won but once, totals 208 years in age and has a combined accumulation of 210 official tour titles.

Wall, subject of the first interview in the first round of the inaugural Hartford tournament a quarter of a century ago, and Casper were tied for second two strokes off the pace with J.C. Snead, Sam's nephew, and Chi Chi Rodriguez, himself 40 years old.

The large group with Snead and Palmer at 68 included Lee Trevino, Homero Blancas, Jim Colbert, Mac McLendon, Tom Jenkins, Jim Wiechers, Bobby Wadkins and Dave Lind.

Hubert Green, a three-time winner this year, shot a 70. So did Al Geiberger. Defending champ Don Bies shot 72. Masters king Ray Floyd must improve from a 73 if he is to make the cut for the final two rounds. And Dave Stockton, the newly-crowned PGA king, blew to a 76.

Baseball playoffs set to begin Oct. 9

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Thursday that the American and National League playoffs will begin on Saturday, Oct. 9, with an afternoon and night game each day to be nationally televised.

The World Series will get under way a week later.

The American League playoffs will open the afternoon of Oct. 9 in the park of the West Division champion. The National League playoff starts that evening on the field of the Eastern champion. The following day the NL switches to an afternoon game with the AL going at night.

After an off day, the best-of-5 series resume on Tuesday, Oct. 12, with an afternoon game in the NL West park and a night game on the AL East field.

If necessary, the leagues switch starting times Wednesday and again on Thursday.

All afternoon games will start at 3:15 p.m., EDT, and night contests at 8:15 p.m., EDT. ABC-TV will televised the playoffs and NBC-TV will do the World Series.

MONTY HENSON

Rodeo champion uses dramatics

MESQUITE, Texas — Dramatics and saddle bronc riding would seem to be two completely separate professions.

But Monty Henson, the 1975 saddle bronc champion and the top money winner in the event this season, believes combining the two can mean the difference between being a world champion and being just another cowboy with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Henson, who earned a $2,500 bonus from the Winston Rodeo Awards program for occupying the No. 1 spot in his event at the midway point of the year, believes his showmanship atop a horse is one of the keys to his success.

"I try to do something a little different than the other guys," says Henson. "I dress them (horses) up. I try to attract attention away from the horses and more to me."

The 22-year-old son of a Dallas policeman saves his "acting ability" for the horses that normally won't earn many points from the judges.

With his black hat with the feather in it drawing attention to his beaming, confident face, Henson makes the difficult job look exceedingly easy.

And when one realizes that he didn't decide to make saddle bronc riding his No. 1 event until he was 17, most rodeo experts are quite surprised at how proficient Henson has become.

From the time he was eight years old, Henson shared the dream of his close friend Donnie Gay, who has won the bull riding championship the last two years, of becoming the best in their chosen event.

Like Donnie and brother Pete Gay, Henson was convinced bull riding was his event to master. "I thought that was the life for me," says Henson, "but my parents didn't care for the idea."

But he was a determined youngster and he started riding bulls when he was 13. In high school, he rode bulls and bareback. "I still ride the bulls when I get the urge," he adds with a wide grin.

But at the age of 16, he decided to try saddle bronc riding. "I rode the first one and that's the only reason I like it. The next 20 I rode, I ended up on the ground."

Yet he never became discouraged. "You have to have determination. You have to want to be a winner."

That Henson does as he adds, "I'd like to be champion several more times — five more would tie the record (set by legendary Casey Tibbs in the 1950s)."

A huge smile engulfs Henson's face as he laughingly adds, "I don't know whether I can live five more years, never mind win five more (titles)."

If Henson repeats as saddle bronc champion, he will receive a $5,000 check from the Winston Rodeo Awards.

Duck and goose seasons told

California will have a 93-day waterfowl hunting season for 1976-77 in most areas under regulations adopted in San Francisco by the California Fish and Game Commission. The regulations are virtually unchanged from those of 1975-76.

Although there will be no bonus provisions in the duck bag, hunters still will be permitted seven birds per day, 14 in possession.

Commissioners voted to continue for a third year a closure on waterfowl and coot hunting in the eastern portion of Big Bear Lake, San Bernardino County, in order to create a resting area for canvasbacks, redheads, ringnecked ducks and scaups.

In addition the commission voted to retain with slight boundary changes a special closure for the protection of the endangered Aleutian Canada goose. Closed to taking of Canada geese and subspecies, of which the Aleutian is one, will be: all of the counties of Del Norte, Humboldt and Mendocino; portions of Glenn, Colusa, Sutter and Butte counties in the Sacramento Valley until Dec. 15, and portions of Stanislaus and Merced counties in the San Joaquin Valley after Dec. 15.

Commissioners liberalized the rule on canvasback ducks in San Francisco Bay, Suisun Bay and Suisun Marsh where the daily bag and possession limit was one last year and where there was no open season the year before.

As in the balance of the state, hunters there will be able to take no more than two redheads or canvasbacks singly or in the aggregate daily and may possess no more than four.

The state is divided into four basic zones for the setting of seasons. In all but the Colorado River zone duck and goose seasons coincide.

In the Southern California zone, excluding the Colorado River, the duck and goose seasons are from Oct. 23 through Jan. 23, 1977. (In a portion of this zone, however, the Canada goose season only closes on Jan. 2. This would include Imperial County and parts of Riverside and San Bernardino counties.)

In the Colorado River zone, where seasons are fixed to coincide with those of Arizona, there will be split seasons — ducks from Oct. 2 through Oct. 31 and from Nov. 22 through Jan. 23, and geese from Oct. 2 through Oct. 31 and from Nov. 22 through Jan. 2.

In the northeastern California zone, where seasons are fixed to coincide with those of Oregon, the duck and goose seasons are from Oct. 9 through Jan. 9.

Anchovy increase nixed

The California Fish and Game Commission has turned down a proposal to permit the commercial take of 200,000 tons of anchovies this season in Southern California waters.

An increase to 200,000 tons from the present established quota of 100,000 tons was recommended by the Department of Fish and Game at a meeting of the commission Friday in San Francisco.

The proposed increase was opposed by representatives of sportfishing groups and industries that serve the sportfisherman.

In making the recommendation for the increase in quota, Edward C. Greenhood, chief of the DFG's Marine Resources Branch, said 200,000 tons could safely be taken from the fishery based on current estimates of the anchovy population.

Department Director E. C. Fullerton stressed the importance of optimum use of the anchovy resource as called for in the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, the so-called 200-mile limit act which goes into effect on March 1, 1977.

Fullerton noted that the department would present a new anchovy management plan for optimum use of the resource at the commission's October 29 meeting in Redding.

The quota in question at Friday's meeting was the tonnage of anchovies permitted to be taken during a season for reduction into high-protein meal used principally in the poultry industry. The Southern California anchovy season begins Sept. 15 and concludes May 15 or whenever the quota is reached.

Last season when the take approached the 100,000-ton mark commercial fishermen were successful in having the quota raised to 150,000 tons. The final catch was 135,752 tons. Commission regulations specify that it will consider requests for increasing the amount of fish that can be taken when the catch approaches the established quota.

A smaller commercial anchovy fishery exists north of Pt. Buchon, San Luis Obispo County, but it represents only about one-tenth of the four and a quarter million-dollar-a-year industry. The northern quota for reduction is 15,000 tons. The season is from Aug. 1 to May 15.

The other major use of anchovies in California is bait for sportfishermen. Approximately 6,000 or 7,000 tons a year are used for that purpose.

At the close of the past season anchovies were selling at $32.50 a ton to the fishermen and at $260 a ton for the high protein meal into which they are reduced. Because they are sold on a different basis, a price for bait fish is hard to gauge.

Aside from tuna, the anchovy represents the most profitable catch for the Southern California commercial fishermen. Anchovies are fished relatively close to the mainland by from 35 to 40 small purse seiners on what are usually overnight trips out of San Pedro.

The concentration of the commercial fishermen on anchovy schools in the San Pedro Channel is one of the main points of controversy between the commercial anchovy industry and the sportfishing groups and industries with which they are aligned. The area is also heavily used by sportfishermen.

Sportfishermen complain when bait is scarce and blame the commercial fishermen for the problem. Additionally, they point to the value of the anchovy as forage for game fish.

Speed ski finals set

Over six thousand dollars will be awarded to contestants entering the International Speed Ski championship Sunday at Long Beach Marine Stadium, promoters Mike Plunkett and Craig Vestermark have announced.

In ski and barefoot competition first prize is $1000 and goes down to $500, $300, $200 and $100 for the next four finishers. Circles skiers get $50 for each heat winner with main prizes $150, $100 and $50 for top three finishers.

Blown fuel hydros (over 200 mph), the winner receives $900. K-Boat (140 mph) will be awarded $500, $200 and $100 for first three placers.

The competition will begin at 12 noon and last until 5 o'clock. Competitors from Australia, South Africa and Canada will compete in ski competition.

FAMILIAR SETTING — Alton L. Sanford, co-owner of Griswold's Inn and Restaurants, and Mrs. Ruth Markham, executive assistant, view the grounds adjoining the complex as they plan tour and dinner for Executives' Secretaries.

Parties honor sisters

Mrs. Lucille Shutters was honored recently on her 94th birthday at a party given by her sister, Mrs. Ruby Barrett of Pomona.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall of New Cuyama, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Kennith Trytten of Lakeside, nephews and nieces of the honoree, two great-grand nieces and a great-great-grand niece from El Cajon.

Mrs. Barrett was also honored recently at a surprise party in celebration of her 87th birthday.

Hosting the event were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall of New Cuyama. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lovett and four children of New Cuyama; Mrs. Wanda Mason and son and granddaughter, Taft; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Glawson of Torrance.

Summer nuptial rites unite valley couple

Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church in Claremont was the setting for the marriage of Miss Theresa J. Glover and Kenneth R. Iriart.

Rev. Msgr. William Barry read the afternoon ceremony which was followed by a reception at La Villa Guasti at Brookside Winery in Cucamonga.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Glover of Claremont. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Iriart of Chino.

Mrs. R. A. Watt of Crest, Calif., was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Harry Buckner of Pomona. Other attendants were Mrs. J. A. Miller, Mission Viejo; Mrs. F. C. Adams, Fallbrook; Mrs. T. R. Hanson, La Verne; Miss Michele Bissonnette, Upland; Miss Yvonne Iriart, Chino; and Messrs. Dave Holbrook, Pomona; Doug Gerwitz, Pomona; Steve Fessler, Pomona; Mike Tolle, Chino; Tim Glover, Claremont. Ring bear was Scott Miller and flower girl was Theresa Adams.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Carmel, San Francisco and Lake Tahoe and are now at home in Upland.

Bodice Beauty

When a formal occasion presents itself, a flat-chested woman would do well in a drawstring or gathered neckline, or a halter dress with shirring on the bodice to add fullness.

Realtors schedule festival

The Women's Council of Realtors Chapter of Ontario-Upland-Chino Board of Realtors is sponsoring a wine-tasting festival August 27 at the Brookside Winery, 9900 Guasti Road, Guasti.

Festivities will begin at 6 p.m. Advance tickets may be purchased at the Realty Board office at Upland Mutual Savings and Loan.

Girl goes to Kibbutz

Miss Anat Meyers, daughter of Bert and Odette Meyers, Claremont professors, is joining a Zionist Youth Organization due to arrive in Israel Sept. 1 to spend 10 months living in Kibbutz Agricultural Communes, collective farms in Israel. She graduates in June from Claremont Collegiate School.

The Zionist Youth Organization program is a worldwide work-study program designed for new high school graduates. The program requires six hours a day of agricultural work in the fields and intensive study of Israel's culture, history and politics. High school graduates involved in the program come from different countries and cultural backgrounds.

Miss Meyers will leave this week for a retreat before departing for Israel. She will visit family and friends for a month in Israel before her orientation.

Secretaries set dinner and tour

Griswold's Inn and Restaurants Emporium in Claremont will host the Thursday meeting of Pomona Valley Chapter of Executives' Secretaries, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sanford, co-owners, will present the history of Griswold's, its people and its services during the after dinner program. Purchased by the Sanfords in 1950, Griswold's serves the public with four restaurants, a theater, hotel services, 37 shops, art gallery, convention facilities and an artisan fair. ESI representative for Griswold's is Mrs. Ruth Markham, executive administrative assistant.

Executives' Secretaries is an international organization of the top professional and business firms with the local chapter encompassing the western San Bernardino County and greater Pomona Valley. Each firm is represented by the woman holding the top secretarial or administrative position with her company. Each member firm is given the opportunity to host a Firm Night in order to inform the membership of its activities, goals and philosophies.

Hospitality hour for the meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with tours originating at the Boiler Room of the playhouse, hotel, art gallery and clay workshop. Chef John Benko will demonstrate his ice carving techniques.

The dinner meeting and program will follow in the Hacienda Room. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Suzanne Shoemaker, Progress Bulletin.

Alcoholic's warning

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband has a habit that infuriates me and do what I will, I can't break him of it. Because of his position we usually go out to social gatherings at least three times during the week, with drinking, of course. My husband is usually fine until we get home. Then he continues to drink and he gets insulting. I could forgive him because I know he's drunk, but the next day he denies ever having said or done these things and claims he doesn't recall them. I know he's lying and simply is unwilling to face up to his misconduct. — P.K.

Dear P.K.: I wonder what makes you so certain that he's not telling the truth when he says he doesn't remember. I believe this is rather an important point because if he truly doesn't remember what he's said and done after a certain point in the evening, I suspect that this blackout is a direct result of the alcohol. Many drinkers suffer from blackouts, and most authorities on alcoholism believe this is a danger signal.

Although some nonalcoholics do experience occasional lapses in memory, blackouts often indicate that the person has slipped over the mark of heavy social drinking and is suffering from an addiction to this drug. The fact that your husband continues to drink when you return home seems to indicate a compulsive drinking pattern. The social drinker does just what the term implies; that is, he or she drinks socially.

If your husband is an alcoholic, the chances are he will be extremely defensive about his drinking. However, try to discuss it with him and suggest that he consider the possibility he is an alcoholic.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: When I'm in an angry mood and really want to let somebody have it, I find if I listen to music it helps to cool me. Music does a lot for me in many ways, and I wonder whether I should consider a musical profession. I don't know how good I am but I have played in the high school band since my freshman year. Does music mean this much to everyone, or is it just me? — J.S.

Dear J.S.: While people differ in their appreciation of music, there's little doubt that it does have a profound effect on most people even though they may not be ardent music lovers. It can alter people's moods and can even make them think better. It can also make some people reason and remember better. Psychologists have found that music inspires some people so much that they score better on tests.

Studies have indicated that when people are anxious or troubled, stimulating, light, popular music alleviated their fears much more than calm music or total silence.

People who love and appreciate music are very fortunate because this makes their world much richer.

Since you play in the school band you might be interested in knowing that a study was made comparing boys who played in the school band with other boys the same age. Those who played in the band scored significantly higher on intelligence, idealism and optimism scales of standard personality tests. They were, however, more apt to suffer from emotional ups and downs and quick mood changes.

Home and garden

Tree seat an added touch to leisure

By STEVE ELLINGSON

Hot summer days turn a shade-giving tree into a welcome oasis. A perfectly airconditioned home is a poor substitute for the cool breezes that can be enjoyed in the outside yard. In a world too busy to take its pulse or relax for a moment, even a brief rest under a shady tree can restore energies. And after a workout in the garden or on the lawn, here's a convenient place to sit down and rest with a cool drink. You can see why tree seats have become more popular than ever.

The pattern for building the tree seat is easy and full-size. Simply trace each pattern part on wood, then saw them all out and assemble. The pattern is designed so that the tree seat can be built to fit any size tree. With a 2 x 4 base, the construction is solid and will last many years. Paint or stain it to match your own lawn furniture.

To obtain the tree seat pattern 352, send $1.50 (includes first class postage and handling). For our special Lawn and Garden Packet (nine other patterns including a chaise lounge, window boxes, awnings and many more yard projects), send $4 by cash, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, c/o: Pomona Progress Bulletin Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409

Roofless room extends entertaining possibilities

A roofless room? If that has earmarks of a crazy idea out of hillbilly country, consider it a moment, anyhow, for it's an intriguing possibility for your home.

Decks are well known; there must be millions now in all shapes and sizes. A roofless or outdoor room is a newcomer among home improvements, and it's much more than a deck.

In balmy weather, it's a delightful place to relax or entertain, under sun or evening star. And behind its high, solid fence, it can be fully as secluded as an indoors room.

It's a garden spot, too, an ideal place for planters on deck, and bigger shrubs and trees growing from the ground through gaps in the decking. That's difficult to arrange inside the house, though the current arboretum fad is coming close.

Tie to Interior Urged

Those plantings promise year-around enjoyment, too, a private garden that's easy to care for, with perhaps a small hot house in one corner.

For convenient use, the outdoor room must extend directly off the living, family or dining room, with the deck installed at floor level and doors made wide and largely of glass.

One delightful outdoor room greatly expanded a tight little townhouse, and was skillfully designed to serve its owners in several ways.

Its ceiling-high walls of western red cedar enclose a spacious main entry, as well as entertaining deck off the dining room. Guests enter through a wood-grille gate and view an array of flowers in planters and ornamentals branching from the ground, before turning to the wide entry deck and its huge cedar plank planter and carved double doors.

Bench Design Unusual

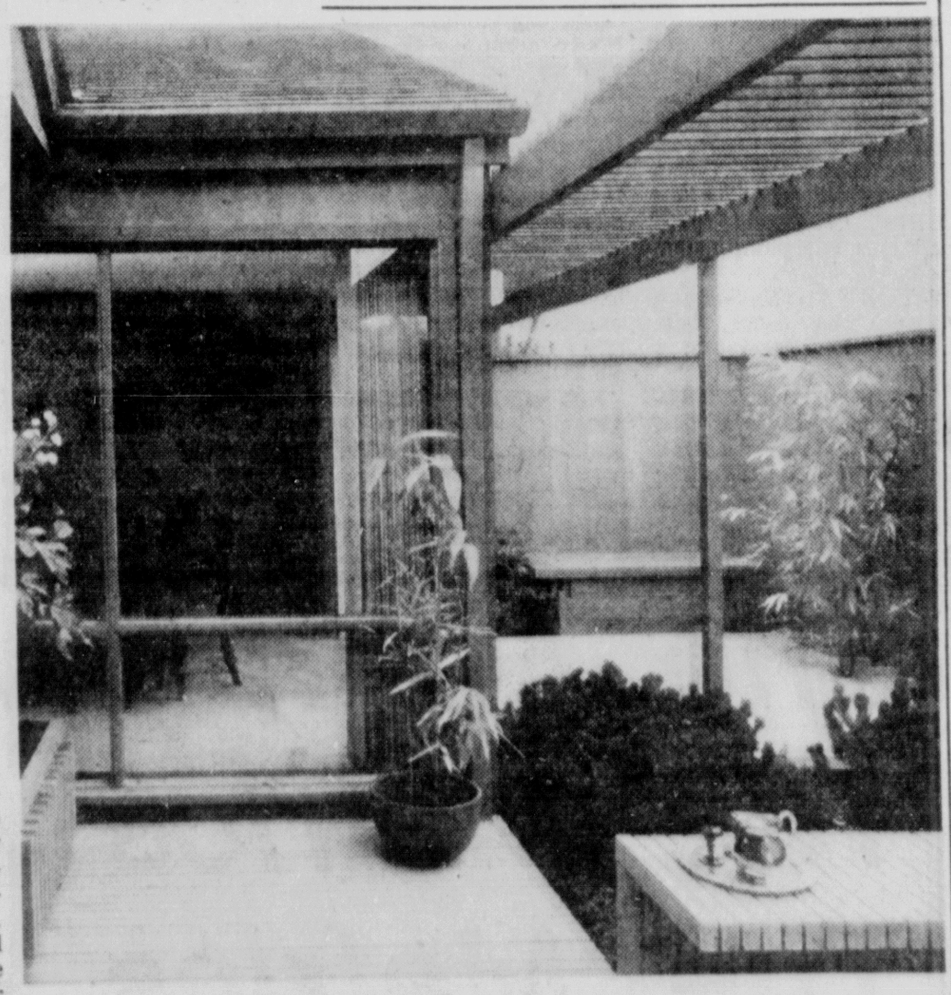

A streamlined bench of 2x3-inch pieces is cantilevered from the back on L-shaped iron braces. And the entire outdoor complex is visible also through the living room's large windows.

All exterior wood is stained to retain the cedar's brown and tan tones, despite its exposure to the weather.

While planning an outdoor room, homeowners and their designers are advised to check the area's codes, as to required setbacks and wall heights. Usually a residential wall-fence higher than six feet must be five feet or more from the property line.

Gardeners check list

1. For a fresh look to carry the flower garden through the late summer and fall months set out Marigolds, Zinnias, Asters, Periwinkle, and Dwarf Dahlias.
2. Chrysanthemums should have received their final pinch by now. Provide plenty of moisture and feed every three or four weeks until the flower buds show color.
3. Camellias will soon be setting buds for next year's bloom. Make sure the plants are well watered during warm weather.
4. Divide and replant crowded perennials this month.
5. Water lawns regularly and keep up light feeding. It will be as handsome in September as it was in spring.

ROOM OUTDOORS — This delightful outdoor room, secluded by high walls and arbor of western red cedar, extends entertaining space off dining room, serves as garden spot to enjoy in good weather and bad, enchants guests as they transverse deck.

Many candidates for national flower

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There are more candidates for the national flower than there are for President of the United States in an election under way.

There are 28 aspirants, with the marigold and the rose among leading contenders. The decision will be made by Congress.

Ballot boxes are in all 14,000 Florists' Transworld Delivery member shops. The results will be presented to Congress, just as FTD did after its first election in 1959, when no decision resulted.

Sens. Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson, Democrats of Washington where the state flower is the rhododendron, favor the apple blossom for the national flower. That's the official bloom of Republican President Ford's home state of Michigan. Also backing the apple blossom is Rep. Mike McCormack, another Democrat from Washington.

The marigold has support in the House from Rep. Floyd Fithian, Republican of Indiana, where the peony is the state flower. Perhaps the strongest champion of the marigold is an Indiana woman, Charlotte Bass, who, at her own expense, has labored for years to focus public backing for the marigold. The State Legislatures of Indiana, Georgia and Illinois have endorsed the marigold and similar resolutions are before lawmakers of several other states.

Noting the competition from the rose, Mrs. Bass asks: "Is this age-old symbol of royalty a fitting emblem for the freedom-loving people of this democracy?"

She also reminds us that the marigold is native to the American continent and to nowhere else in the world. And she contends it is the friendship flower, symbolic of the desire of the United States for peace and friendship with all peoples of the world.

In the U.S. Senate the marigold is sponsored by Republican Howard Baker of Tennessee state flower iris, and Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana bitterroot. Baker explains his abandonment of the iris by saying his late father-in-law, Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, long favored the marigold.

Here are the 28 candidates: by number on the FTD ballot, which also permits write-in votes:

1. Apple Blossom; 2. Azalea; 3. Begonia; 4. Black-Eyed Susan; 5. Camellia; 6. Carnation; 7. Chrysanthemum; 8. Corn Tassel; 9. Daffodil; 10. Dahlia; 11. Daisy; 12. Dogwood; 13. Geranium; 14. Gladiolus; 15. Lilac; 16. Lily; 17. Magnolia; 18. Marigold; 19. Mountain Laurel; 20. Orchid; 21. Pansy; 22. Peony; 23. Petunia; 24. Rhododendron; 25. Rose; 26. Snapdragon; 27. Tulip; 28. Zinnia.

Appropriately-named Don Flowers of Randellstown Md., FTD president, said, "Gardeners love and appreciate flowers and plants as much as florists, and we hope they lead the rest of the nation in producing a big vote that will impress Congress and result in the designation of an official U.S. flower. After all, every state has a flower and some also honor animals, birds and even fish. The country needs a floral emblem to take its place with the bald eagle and our other national symbols."

New Garden Book

"Flower Decoration in European Homes," by Laurence Buffet-Challie Morrow is a beautiful arrangement itself, offering many approaches to flower decorating for all. The book provides good descriptions about design and mechanics, plant materials, use of color, and adaptation. There are numerous color and black and white illustrations and 78 flower arrangement diagrams.

Progress Bulletin

An accident happens. You fall from a ladder, trip on a toy, or are hurt in an automobile wreck.

Your next step—a trip to the hospital or to your doctor's office for emergency treatment. Then back home to heal.

That's the pattern for most accidents and the reason behind this affordable new accident policy your newspaper had National Casualty Company write for readers like you.

It puts the benefits where you need them—toward those emergency treatment bills that could come right out of your pocket. This is how it will help you:

(1) For doctor expense, when your first visit occurs within 5 days of the accident, up to $15 a visit and up to a total of $45.

(2) Up to $25 in X-ray examination expense benefit, in hospital emergency room or your doctor's office.

(3) There's up to $30 for special services you may require in the emergency room or doctor's office if you go there within 48 hours of your accident, and—

(4) There's up to $30 toward the expense of an ambulance.

Four needed benefits. It's the simplest accident policy you're likely to hear about. And it could be the most helpful to you. The premium is $5 for 6 months or $10 the year. Use this application to make this help yours. Do it today.

THINK OF IT AS EMERGENCY MONEY.
